Reds Devalue Ruble; Halt All Rationing

10-1 Basis Used To Cut Money; Observers See Anti-U. S. Move

MOSCOW, Dec. 15—The decision of the Soviet government to devalue the ruble on a 10-for-one basis and to abandon all rationing was hailed in Moscow today as a step which will improve the living standard of all Russian citizens.

The drastic currency devaluation was declared a necessity in crushing a widespread practice of speculation which has led to extreme inflation.

Despite some hardships which will result from the monetary conversion, the Soviet populace was promised a better future through a general reduction of prices and moves to make more goods available.

The currency reform and the decision to end rationing was announced by Premier Generalissimo Stalin and Col. Gen. Andrei A. Zhukov, secretary of the Communist party central committee.

The steps were approved jointly by the council of ministers, which is the Soviet cabinet, and the Communist party.

THE POPULACE awaited the announcement anxiously throughout the day after the Moscow radio repeatedly told listeners to stand by for a vital announcement on currency reform and abolition of rationing.

The immediate reaction of the people was one of rejoicing over the prospect of greater supplies of food and consumer goods at lower prices.

The action to eliminate rationing was hailed generally as a New Year's gift which will considerably improve the standard of living.

The currency reform plan takes effect tomorrow when the government will begin a one-week period of exchanging money now in circulation at the rate of one new ruble for 10 old ones.

The biggest losers will be war profiteers who have accumulated fortunes highly disproportionate with funds of the average Russian.

Small depositors in banks will not be affected by the currency reform. For every ruble up to 3,000 rubles which they now have in the bank they will receive one new ruble in exchange.

In Washington, federal reserve officials said that Russia's drastic devaluation of the ruble was a virtual repudiation of her currency and indicates that inflation within the Soviet is worse than outsiders had thought.

Economic experts also interpreted Moscow's decision in wiping out nine-tenths of her currency's buying power as a bold step designed to bolster the economy of her entire satellite bloc and extend opposition to the Marshall Plan.

J. BURKE KNAPP, associate director of research and chief foreign currency expert of the federal reserve board, said he

Truman Readies Marshall Plan Talk To Solons

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—President Truman told congressional leaders today that his message on the Marshall Plan for long-range aid to Europe will be sent to congress this week.

The special session called for action on interim foreign aid and domestic inflation is expected to end Friday.

Although he set aside a full hour for today's conference with leaders of both major parties, Mr. Truman talked with the congressional spokesmen for only 20 minutes.

Sen. Vandenberg (R) Mich., one of the nine Capitol Hill bigwigs who attended the conference, said the President merely wanted to learn when the special session would adjourn, so his Marshall Plan message could be submitted prior to that date.

VANDENBERG and Senate Majority Leader White (R) Maine, said the chief executive gave no advance details of his views on the multi-billion dollar aid program. Vandenberg commented:

"He just wanted to notify us

Mother Admits Killing 2 Sons

WARREN, Dec. 15—A 34-year-old mother confessed to police today that she started the fire which caused the death of her two children in a trailer south of here yesterday.

Mrs. Lillie May Bell told Trumbull County Sheriff Ralph Milikin that she set the fire because she was "mad" at her common-law husband, Claude, 45.

Police said the two were intoxicated and incoherent at the time the children, Claude, Jr., 2, and Robert, 4, burned to death in the trailer.

The youngest child died in his bed, while Robert made a futile attempt to escape from the blazing trailer.

White Christmas This Year? Maybe, Says Weatherman

By C. G. ANDRUS
Chief Meteorologist
Cleveland Weather Bureau
CLEVELAND, Dec. 15—The Christmases of yesteryears are the best guide to what performance will be on the weather stage for 1947's Yule Day.

As at other seasons the weather around Dec. 25 strikes an average or most common level for the various elements, but away from that level the individual day may make some extraordinary sorties.

Technically, the middle ground or average is called the mean or normal and the widest departures from that are the extremes.

It is shown by a glance through the individual days that many more times it happens that weather is nearer the normal than the extreme; but the extremes show what may happen once in a long time.

Let's see what Christmas records for the present 20th century have shown.

These records, for obvious reasons are those compiled in Cleveland, but on the whole apply to most of Ohio, particularly in regard to temperatures.

SNOW? YES, quite a frequent visitor to Ohio on Christmas—in fact, 21 out of the 47 of the holidays if we count a measurable amount. But if we call a white Christmas a day when a few flakes or more were seen to fall, there are 36 on the books.

Really substantial white Christmases showed up in 1909 with a half-foot on the level, and 1944 with 5.8 inches which, when added to what already was on the ground, piled up to 8-1/2 inches by the time Christmas bowed out.

Remember 1935? Three inches of snow fell, while the mercury hovered between zero and 22 degrees and a 30-mile-an-hour wind blitzed most of Ohio.

This draws us to temperature figures—a five-below in 1924 at one end of the scale and a high of 65 in 1932. It is just a mathematical sure thing that there is only one to 47 chance that the 1947 Christmas will be hotter or colder than that pair of extremes.

For an average day, top temperatures would be 34 degrees and the low, 21. Christmas, 1932, was the prize one, with a 65-degree high in the afternoon following a 35 at about package-opening time.

The sun cuts capers too. Sixteen Christmases past had nary a gleam and three of the 47 not a cloud. As an average, the sun shone for about 26 percent of the time.

Is rain mentionable as a yuletide weather event? Yes, it does wet the state once in a while, in fact about once in eight times that Christmas rolls around.

As a final curtain to the rather dull figures of Christmases past that point unmistakably toward the one to come, it is just about unproven from the statistics, but weathermen generally agree that somewhere fairly high to Christmas there is a place in the year that has the most changeable weather ever.

SO VARIETY is a fair estimate and it seems least possible to find the day before Christmas, Christmas Day and the day after will look at all alike when we bookkeep the happenings in 1947.

Prepare for the Christmas past of weather to walk not only as a ghost, but as a real eventful day in weather.

Some sort of a record would be made if a little wind and a little calm, a little rain, a little sun, Christmas Day and the day after will look at all alike when we bookkeep the happenings in 1947.

Ag Society Selects 8 Directors

Mayor Gordon Is Defeated

Eight new directors have been named by the Pickaway County Agricultural Society.

Final tabulation of the balloting, which was held last week, was made Saturday by society officials.

Tom D. Harman, secretary-manager of the society, identified winning candidates as follows.

Herschel Hill and James Yost, both of Circleville; B. W. Young, Pickaway township; Loren Leist, Washington township; Paul Tegardin, Madison township; Harold Strous, Saltcreek township; J. Beryl Stevenson, Wayne township; and Harry Brown, Harrison township. Seventeen other directors were not up for reelection.

All will serve three-year terms excepting Brown who was chosen for a one-year term.

EACH BALLOT carried the names of four candidates in Circleville and of two candidates in each of six of the county's 15 townships. The defeated candidates were:

Ben H. Gordon and George Fissell, both of Circleville; Harry Montelius, Pickaway township; E. E. Richards, Washington township; Chester B. Noecker, Madison township; Wayne Luckardt, Saltcreek township; George W. Mallett, Wayne township; and H. O. Caldwell, Harrison township.

Gordon is the only member of the board of directors who was defeated for reelection.

This was attributed to the probability that Gordon, who

5 Local Dairies Hike Milk Prices

A one-cent increase sent the price of milk to 19 cents a quart Monday in Circleville.

A joint statement made by five dairies said the price advances for milk and cream, either sold in the stores or delivered to the homes, are:

Milk, one cent a quart, coffee cream, two cents a half-pint, and whipping cream, five cents a half-pint.

The dairies are the Blue Ribbon, Ringgold, Reichelderfer, Myers and Guessman. The increases were made necessary, it was stated, because of higher prices paid to farmers plus the seasonal decrease in milk production.

The statement also said that effective Tuesday a deposit charge of five cents for each bottle, wholesale and retail will be made.

First Spade Of Dirt At New GE Plant To Be Turned This Week

First spade of dirt toward the construction of Circleville's new two and one-half million dollar General Electric factory will be turned in the next two or three days.

Charles F. Replogle, local general contractor, who has been given the job of clearing the land for construction engineers, said his big bulldozers and other earth-moving equipment already was being shuttled to location for his end of the job.

Replogle said he is extending a special invitation to Circleville Mayor Ben Gordon and to the Circleville Chamber of Commerce to be present when the first dirt is moved. It is probable that a civic ceremony will be staged.

The factory, which will eventually employ a minimum of 500 persons with an annual combined income of one million dollars, will be erected south of East Ohio street on land formerly owned by Mount of Praise and the Elizabeth Rugles estate.

Times Change; Santa In 'Copter

CLEVELAND, Dec. 15—Santa Claus really does fly through the air.

Clevelanders saw him soaring through the clouds yesterday just as generations of children knew he did—only the reindeer were missing and the traditional sleigh had been transformed into a helicopter.

The highly-venerated gentleman from the North Pole came down in the midst of some 20,000 excited youngsters at the Pearl-Brook shopping center. He distributed candy and told the young admirers he would be available for more personal interviews all next week.

officially Friday that GE would establish a branch plant here. The corporation has acquired title to 23 acres of land.

Replogle said the building proper would cover an area of 221 feet by 724 feet. Architectural plans drawn up for GE call for a one-story factory building fronted by a two-floor business office annex.

The local contractor's primary job will be to clear ground ahead of the appearance of the Steine-Wolfe company of Fremont which has the contract for building construction.

The building itself will cost about $1,000,000 and factory equipment will cost approximately $1,500,000.

In addition to general land-clearing, Replogle said his sub-contract called for grading a railroad bed for a spur of the Norfolk and Western Railway and to dig drainage troughs.

Replogle said that when building construction gets fully underway, the Fremont firm should have about 200 men on the job.

The local man's crew will be limited since the bulk of the work will be done by heavy tractors, graders, crawler cranes and power shovels.

No buildings or trees will be in Replogle's way. He said he could not immediately estimate how long it will take for him to complete his assignment—the weatherman will play a vital role in that respect.

Mercury Drop Due Tomorrow

The Ohio weather was slipping back into its unpleasant groove today after an unusually bright and mild Sunday for this time of the year.

The sky was clouding this morning and weathermen said that rain was in the picture for most of the state by tonight.

Temperatures were on the upgrade due to the influence of southerly winds. Unseasonal highs of 45 to 55 degrees were forecast for this afternoon.

Observers said that a cold mass of air, moving directly west to east, would reach Ohio tomorrow, dropping the mercury back to near normal and depositing a light amount of snow over the entire state.

Alien Ouster Hamstrung By Senate

Deportation Move Being Stalled

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—A senate official revealed today that more than 100 aliens facing deportation have been granted immunity against expulsion from the United States because of senatorial "courtesy."

Richard Arens, director of the senate subcommittee on immigration and naturalization, disclosed that immigration authorities have agreed to stay the deportation of the aliens.

Edward J. Shaughnessy, special assistant to immigration and Naturalization Commissioner Watson B. Miller, said there was an "understanding" with the judiciary subcommittee, which is headed by Sen. Revercomb (R) W. Va.

Arens explained that the understanding with immigration authorities was that "on introduction of a private bill there will be no deportation, except on exceptional cases, pending action by congress." He recalled only three "exceptional" cases this year.

MORE THAN 100—the exact number was in dispute and may be closer to 200—private bills have been sponsored in the

More Clashes Reported As Palestine Boils

JERUSALEM, Dec. 15—New Arab-Jewish clashes caused additional casualties in strife-torn Palestine today.

One Arab was killed and seven wounded when four Jews believed to be members of the Irgun underground attacked an Arab bus near the Lydda airport. The attackers wore British army uniforms.

In the Tel Aviv-Jaffa frontier region, two Arabs were killed when Jewish defense forces smashed back Arab units from advanced positions. Many others were reported wounded.

The new Tel Aviv-Jaffa clash took place as a frontier force belonging to Transjordan units was blown up in the eastern part of Jerusalem. One of the Arab soldiers in the car was wounded by the blast near the Mustafah police station which was believed to have been caused by Jews.

A SPOKESMAN for the Jewish agency meanwhile voiced a demand for immediate withdrawal of units of the Transjordan Arab Legion which had been patrolling Palestine.

He declared that if the legionnaires are not withdrawn from all of Palestine they at least should be removed to the strictly Arab areas of the Holy Land.

The demand follows a clash yesterday between Jews and Arab legionnaires in which 14 Jews were killed and 12 wounded.

Inflation Bill Irks Democrats

No Amendments To Be Allowed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—The house Republican leadership decided to push through the GOP anti-inflation legislation this afternoon without permitting any amendments to be offered.

House Minority Leader Rayburn (D) Tex., termed the decision "outrageous."

The agreement was reached at a conference between Speaker Martin (R) Mass., Majority Leader Halleck (R) Ind., and Rep. Wolcott (R) Mich., the legislation's sponsor, 15 minutes before the house convened at noon.

House GOP leaders decided to permit 20 minutes of debate on each side and then a final vote without amendments. Under this procedure, passage requires a two-thirds, rather than a majority vote.

Rep. Gore (D) Tenn., a young Democratic leader, announced after a conference with Rayburn that the Democrats "will fight it to the last ditch."

Halleck told newsmen that "as far as I'm concerned, this is it." He added: "If the Democrats whip this thing today it will be their responsibility."

REJECTION by the house would not kill the bill. It merely means that the legislation must be brought up under regular procedure, which requires clearance to the floor by the rules committee, with longer debate than is usually required under suspension of the rules.

Furthermore, amendments are usually permitted to be offered under this procedure.

The GOP anti-inflation legislation provides for extension of controls on exports and transportation facilities; an increase in the gold reserves held by federal reserve banks to lessen inflationary effects of large bank deposits and commercial credits; and voluntary allocations and priorities over scarce materials by business, industry and agriculture.

Halleck contended that unless the Republican bill is whipped through the house today, congress would have no time to enact the legislation before the scheduled adjournment of the special session next Friday or Saturday. Congress will reconvene for its next regular session Jan. 6.

Gore outlined three points of opposition to the Republican bill following his conference with Rayburn.

While emphasizing that he was not speaking for the Democratic leader, Gore said the GOP bill is "first, only an ineffective gesture and a smoke screen for inaction; second, designed to raise the interest rate not only on government bonds, but on all commercial loans across the country; and third, the anti-trust section would give big business a big stick over the government."

Under the proposed legislation, business would be permitted

Two separate maritime accidents in the Caribbean took a reported toll of at least four lives today.

A Reuter dispatch from Willemstad, Curacao, said the Argentine Tanker Loz Pozos collided with the Venezuelan Tanker Tucipite at 4 a. m. Both ships caught fire and at last reports still were burning.

Four men were reported dead, several injured and a number are missing. Survivors and victims were reported being landed.

At the same time, a seagoing tug flashed a distress call. The tug SS Killerig, returning from a ship refueling mission 170 miles off Aruba, flashed an SOS after it ran aground a mile from Morant Point, on the island of Jamaica in the West Indies.

The crew of 40 safely abandoned the tug which was rapidly taking on water.

Alien Ouster Hamstrung By Senate

Deportation Move Being Stalled

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—A senate official revealed today that more than 100 aliens facing deportation have been granted immunity against expulsion from the United States because of senatorial "courtesy."

Richard Arens, director of the senate subcommittee on immigration and naturalization, disclosed that immigration authorities have agreed to stay the deportation of the aliens.

Edward J. Shaughnessy, special assistant to immigration and Naturalization Commissioner Watson B. Miller, said there was an "understanding" with the judiciary subcommittee, which is headed by Sen. Revercomb (R) W. Va.

Arens explained that the understanding with immigration authorities was that "on introduction of a private bill there will be no deportation, except on exceptional cases, pending action by congress." He recalled only three "exceptional" cases this year.

MORE THAN 100—the exact number was in dispute and may be closer to 200—private bills have been sponsored in the

More Clashes Reported As Palestine Boils

JERUSALEM, Dec. 15—New Arab-Jewish clashes caused additional casualties in strife-torn Palestine today.

One Arab was killed and seven wounded when four Jews believed to be members of the Irgun underground attacked an Arab bus near the Lydda airport. The attackers wore British army uniforms.

In the Tel Aviv-Jaffa frontier region, two Arabs were killed when Jewish defense forces smashed back Arab units from advanced positions. Many others were reported wounded.

The new Tel Aviv-Jaffa clash took place as a frontier force car belonging to Transjordan units was blown up in the eastern part of Jerusalem. One of the Arab soldiers in the car was wounded by the blast near the Mustafsha police station which was believed to have been caused by Jews.

A SPOKESMAN for the Jewish agency meanwhile voiced a demand for immediate withdrawal of units of the Transjordan Arab Legion which had been patrolling Palestine.

He declared that if the legionnaires are not withdrawn from all of Palestine they at least should be removed to the strictly Arab areas of the Holy Land.

The demand follows a clash yesterday between Jews and Arab legionnaires in which 14 Jews were killed and 12 wounded.

Inflation Bill Irks Democrats

No Amendments To Be Allowed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—The house Republican leadership decided to push through the GOP anti-inflation legislation this afternoon without permitting any amendments to be offered.

House Minority Leader Rayburn (D) Tex., termed the decision "outrageous."

The agreement was reached at a conference between Speaker Martin (R) Mass., Majority Leader Halleck (R) Ind., and Rep. Wolcott (R) Mich., the legislation's sponsor, 15 minutes before the house convened at noon.

House GOP leaders decided to permit 20 minutes of debate on each side and then a final vote without amendments. Under this procedure, passage requires a two-thirds, rather than a majority vote.

Rep. Gore (D) Tenn., a young Democratic leader, announced after a conference with Rayburn that the Democrats "will fight it to the last ditch."

Halleck told newsmen that "as far as I'm concerned, this is it." He added: "If the Democrats whip this thing today it will be their responsibility."

REJECTION by the house would not kill the bill. It merely means that the legislation must be brought up at a regular procedure, which requires clearance to the floor by the rules committee, with longer debate than is usually required under suspension of the rules.

Furthermore, amendments are usually permitted to be offered under this procedure.

The GOP anti-inflation legislation provides for extension of controls on exports and transportation facilities; an increase in the gold reserves held by federal reserve banks to lessen inflationary effects of large bank deposits and commercial credits; and voluntary allocations and priorities over scarce materials by business, industry and agriculture.

Halleck contended that unless the Republican bill is whipped through the house today, congress would have no time to enact the legislation before the scheduled adjournment of the special session next Friday or Saturday. Congress will reconvene for its next regular session Jan. 6.

Gore outlined three points of opposition to the Republican bill following his conference with Rayburn.

While emphasizing that he was not speaking for the Democratic leader, Gore said the GOP bill is "first, only an ineffective gesture and a smoke screen for inaction; second, designed to raise the interest rate not only on government bonds, but on all commercial loans across the country; and third, the anti-trust section would give big business a big stick over the government."

Under the proposed legislation, business would be permitted senate this year. They permit aliens facing deportation to remain in this country and to establish legal residence in the U. S.

Disclosure that an "understanding" existed between immigration authorities and the senate came almost a year after Attorney Gen. Clark complained about the situation which had grown up over the past 12 years.

Clark complained early this year to the senate and house judiciary committees that immigration authorities were being hamstrung in their efforts to deport hundreds of individuals.

Rep. Celler (D) N. Y., explained that a congressman, by the simple expedient of introducing a private bill and then failing to request a hearing on the measure or any other action, tied the hands of immigration authorities.

As a result of Clark's complaint, and a concurrent appeal from the State department for action, the house judiciary committee advised the attorney general that "you may feel free to disregard the practice of staying deportation proceedings unless the committee itself officially requests a delay."

Fellows declared that the failure of the senate committee to take similar action tended to "nullify" the new policy established by the house group.

Lad 3, His Pup, Die As Fire Sweeps Home

COLUMBUS, Dec. 15 — Funeral services were arranged today for three-year-old Leonard McKinnis, who died yesterday along with his collie pup, in flames that swept his Columbus home after a kitchen kerosene stove exploded.

Hospital authorities today listed the conditions of Leonard's step-father, Donald Artz, 42, and his wife, Mae, 23, as "just fair." The mother was burned on both arms and the upper back, while Artz suffered serious burns over most of his body.

Artz told sheriff's deputies he, his wife and five of their six children were in bed about 8:15 a. m. yesterday when Coby, 7, bounded up the stairs shouting: "Some paper is on fire in the kitchen."

Artz said the child had tried to light the kitchen stove and that when he ran down stairs, he "saw the whole wall on fire behind the stove."

The stepfather said he lifted each member of his family over new construction where he was adding a front porch to their home. But when he turned to aid Leonard, Artz said, the boy had headed for the back door and was lost in the flames.

Lower Court To Test Ruling

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 — The supreme court today placed before a circuit court of appeals the question of the constitutionality of Taft-Hartley act provisions which deny to foremen the protection of the National Labor Relations law.

The high court granted leave to the Foremen's Association of America to become a party to a controversy between the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Co., and the National Labor Relations Board and returned the case to the lower court.

The supreme court directed the lower court to decide whether the new labor law operated to invalidate the cease and desist order issued against the Budd company by the NLRB.

The company had been charged by the board with acting to discourage membership in the foremen's union.

Crawford already had served four days and the other four were suspended. However, the youth was remanded to jail pending the outcome of an investigation by the FBI of the 22-caliber pistol seized when State Highway Patrolman J. E. Mansperger and Mt. Sterling constable Harry Dixon nabbed him Dec. 11.

The arrest followed a complaint by a truck driver who claimed he had been fired upon while traveling on the CCC highway near Mt. Sterling. The affidavit against Crawford was filed by Patrolman Mansperger. The serial number had been filed from the pistol.

Reds Slash Ruble Value

could recall no other incident in recent history where a great power had virtually repudiated its own currency.

At the same time, Dr. Charles Prince, authority on Russian economy, declared that the devaluation of Soviet currency is designed "to minimize in some measure the present supreme position of the dollar" in world trade.

The move provided a potent propaganda measure for the United States. Officials of the State department said that the "Voice of America" would broadcast the news on a 24 hour basis to every country it could reach.

Dr. Prince, Soviet economic specialist for the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, who forecast the move a week ago, said that the step is aimed at binding the economies of the Russian satellite states more closely to that of the USSR.

He contended that the Russian aim is to push the Western European powers and the United States into a position of secondary economic importance, adding:

"It should be noted that this currency decree is an integral part of a course of action designed to defeat the European reconstruction program, currently known as the Marshall Plan."

"By offering large quantities of gold rubles or the actual metal itself, the Soviet government could not only purchase goods and materials which it needs in many parts of the world, but also force up the price of these goods and materials in terms of dollars and pounds."

Gangland Pair To Get Hearing

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—The two surviving members of a trio of revenge killers today faced a speedy trial in Chicago on charges of slaying three men and seriously wounding two others.

First Assistant State's Attorney Richard Austin said he will present evidence today to the Cook County grand jury. Austin's announcement followed the surrender yesterday of James Morelli, 20. He had been named by another member of the gang, Lowell Fentress, 21, as the triggerman in three of last Friday's shootings.

Nick Kuesis, 32-year-old brother of John Kuesis, 33, the first man slain in the shooting spree, pointed to Morelli and said: "That's the guy that started it all. He killed my brother. Just leave me alone with him for five minutes."

Morelli denied he had shot anyone. He admitted, however, that he had been present at the shootings.

Morelli had been the object of an intensive manhunt since he escaped from his south side apartment as police closed in on him and Thomas Daley, 36-year-old gang leader. Daley was cut down by machinegun and shotgun blasts before he could get away.

Huge Swindle To Be Bared By Jap Solon

TOKYO, Dec. 15—A huge swindle involving several hundred billion yen worth of Japanese army and navy industrial and consumer materials, stockpiled since the surrender, will be revealed officially to the Japanese people Saturday.

The disclosure will be made by Komakiichi Matsuoka, speaker of the Japanese house of representatives.

He will read a lengthy preliminary report by a parliamentary committee which conducted a five-month investigation of the scandal. This report caused last week's decision by the diet (parliament) to create Japan's first investigating committee with authority to subpoena witnesses and question them under oath.

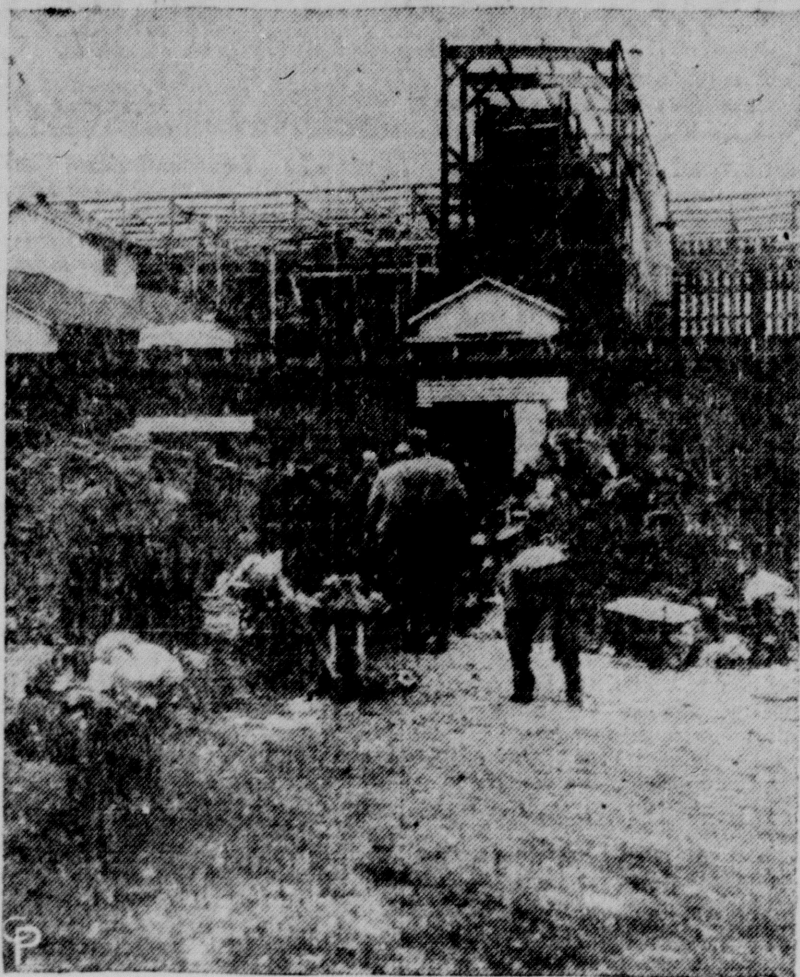

Matsuoka's preliminary report, it was learned today, charges that Japan's former family trusts known as Zaibatsu along with militarists and government officials collaborated in looting from the Japanese people hundreds of billions yen worth of materials.

THESE MATERIALS had been captured by United States armed forces. They had then been returned to Japan's home ministry with a strict allied injunction against their use for any purpose except civilian relief and civilian economic reconstruction.

The report charges that Takashi Komatsu, a representative of the Asano Zaibatsu, organized an extra-legal arms disposition committee. Komatsu was educated at Monmouth college in Illinois and at Harvard university.

The committee according to the report, was comprised of five Zaibatsu organizations which had handled vast quantities of metals.

Cube Turkey Steaks Said Aid To Buyer

Turkey raisers want to produce the larger holiday bird—the public wants the smaller fowl. The cost for a large tom is too much for the average family. To produce a small turkey the cost per pound of gain is far greater than in the case of the larger fowl.

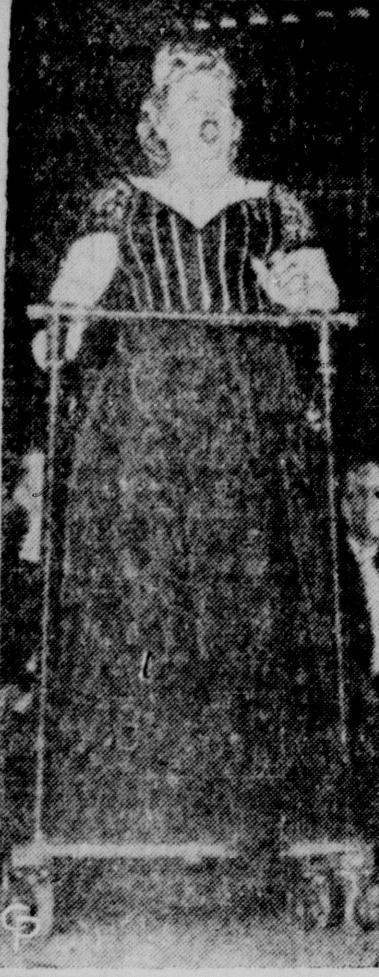

Desiring to create a year around consumer demand for turkeys, the National Turkey federation and the Poultry and Egg National board decided to utilize a machine which for years has been turning out the beef cubed steak.

The meat is removed from the turkey and sent through the machine and out comes a four or six ounce steak, ready for the stove and then the lunch box or the formal dinner.

Consumption of turkeys has been less than five pounds per capita. With development of the turkey steak, the turkey industry is endeavoring to attain a per capita output 10 times higher. The cubed turkey steak can be quick frozen and packaged in the same manner as many other kinds of steaks. This new plan is expected to assure the turkey raiser that there will be no overproduction of turkeys.

Legion Sets Essay Contest

All High School Pupils Eligible

The Howard Hall post, American Legion, is planning to sponsor an essay test this year with all high school pupils of Circleville and Pickaway county schools eligible to enter.

The subject of the essay will be: "How Can the United Nations Be More Effective."

Walter Downing, 223 North Scioto Street, has been appointed Essay Contest Committee chairman and will handle the operations of the writings and present the awards.

The English departments of each school is to be asked to aid in this program by assigning students the task during one of their daily classes. The essay is not to be assigned as a homework task, and each teacher shall judge her own group.

EACH TEACHER is to choose the two best essays from each grade and submit them to the chairman not later than February 1, 1948. These essays will be judged by a committee of not less than three members appointed by the district commander.

Winners of the local contest there are to be eight—will receive either a bronze medal or a certificate. In addition to this, they will be given the opportunity to compete in the district contest, and later in the state contest.

Twelve winners will be chosen in the state contest, three from each grade, and each will receive handsome awards.

Huge Swindle To Be Bared By Jap Solon

TOKYO, Dec. 15—A huge swindle involving several hundred billion yen worth of Japanese army and navy industrial and consumer materials, stockpiled since the surrender, will be revealed officially to the Japanese people Saturday.

The disclosure will be made by Komakichi Matsuoka, speaker of the Japanese house of representatives.

He will read a lengthy preliminary report by a parliamentary committee which conducted a five-month investigation of the scandal. This report caused last week's decision by the diet (parliament) to create Japan's first investigating committee with authority to subpoena witnesses and question them under oath.

Matsuoka's preliminary report, it was learned today, charges that Japan's former family trusts known as Zaibatsu along with militarists and government officials collaborated in looting from the Japanese people hundreds of billions yen worth of materials.

THESE MATERIALS had been captured by United States armed forces. They had then been returned to Japan's home ministry with a strict allied injunction against their use for any purpose except civilian relief and civilian economic reconstruction.

The report charges that Takashi Komatsu, a representative of the Asano Zaibatsu, organized an extra-legal arms disposition committee. Komatsu was educated at Monmouth college in Illinois and at Harvard university.

The committee according to the report, was comprised of five Zaibatsu organizations which had handled vast quantities of metals.

NEW MISSISSIPPI CANAL

SOON THE 1,100 mile waterway connecting Minneapolis-St. Paul with the Gulf of Mexico will be freed of navigation hazards. Under the Army engineers a giant canal is being constructed, its northern tip near St. Louis across the Mississippi River to Illinois. It is to extend eight miles south on a diagonal line to Granite City, Ill. The main lock is one of the largest locks in the world. It is 1,200 feet long which is 200 feet longer than the great locks of the Panama Canal. Its walls will reach to the height of a five-story building. The canal, which will be about four years in building, is necessary to avoid the seven-mile Chain of Rocks of the Mississippi in this area. Because of these obstructions tows must now be broken.

In the future the canal will permit quicker and cheaper shipment through from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, thus greatly enhancing the commercial and industrial growth of the vast Mississippi Valley. The cost is estimated at over 16 and a half million dollars with a broad new bridge, at another million and a half, planned to carry U. S. Route 66 over the canal.

The operation is gigantic, representing much expenditure of manpower and wealth. Few nations could undertake such a project of internal improvement at this time.

HOMES, NOT SHACKS!

ON THE outskirts of most metropolitan centers new homes are going up. Billboards proclaim them as "GI homes". They are small and priced a splinter under the $10,000 limit. A few years ago they would have been thought expensive at half the figure. In too many cases they are being built on a mass production scale in sickening uniformity. Row after row of them is mushrooming to completion. Each one, except for small details, is exactly like its neighbor. They are equidistant from the sidewalk and from each other. The effect is of an army cantonment with houses instead of barracks.

Mass production means economy, and the building trades have need for all savings possible. Yet surely such deadly monotony is not necessary. The American scene is being marred by it. The future of such dwellings in too many cases will be a tenement status. Constructed hastily, in many instances they will not stand up well. Lacking individuality, they will inspire little lasting affection.

America needs new houses, but they should be homes, not merely shacks.

People are beginning to ask where Joe Stalin keeps himself. Just give that man a little more invisible publicity, and he may develop into a solar myth.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Columbia university probably reached its apogee as an institution of learning during the years just before World War I. Nicholas Murray Butler, together with John Dewey, launched Teachers college, which is the most decisive factor in education in the United States. He lived long enough, 85 years, to be able to judge the consequences of the secularization of education and the emphasis of functional rather than humanistic training.

Nicholas Murray Butler was himself a curious combination of the scholar and practical man, more so perhaps than Eliot of Harvard or Hadley of Yale. He built an institution of learning that touched life at every point, that could have the best of Chinese and Indo-Iranian scholarship and also practical schools of journalism and dentistry. At about the time of World War I, Columbia housed a galaxy of learned men unequalled in America. Dewey in philosophy, Robinson in history, Beard in government, Thorndike in psychology, Seligman in economics, Shotwell, Hayes and Muzzey in history, John Bassett Moore in international law, Hirth in Chinese, Jackson in Indo-Iranian languages, Pupin in physics, Boas in anthropology, and on and on.

It was a wonderful time to be at Columbia. There was enthusiasm for scholarship, close contact with brilliant men, sharp interchange of ideas. And the spirit of the place, taking its tone from Butler, was broadly liberal in the sense that the educated man meets life in all its characteristics, and forms his own conclusions as a personal choice.

World War I created a paradox. Nicholas Murray Butler had done more than any man in America to stir an interest in world peace. The Carnegie Foundation and Butler's own International Conciliation propagated for peace, for understanding and for world order. Butler had studied in Germany, had been honored by German universities. Many of the Columbia professors were opposed to the war; they could not heap the abuse on Germany that was characteristic of that war. They could not hate their colleagues who were of German origin.

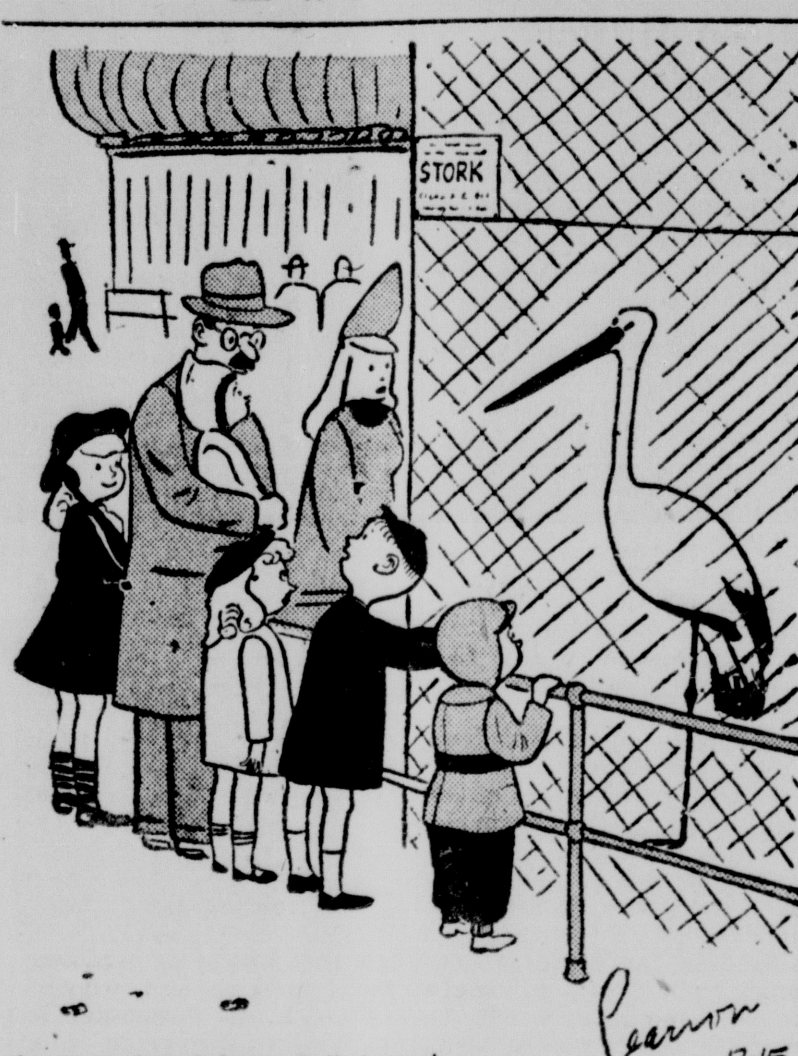

Large numbers of students were inclined to oppose war. Columbia was the center of the Collegiate Anti-Militarism League which developed quite a following in American universities. Butler's problem was no longer one in the realm of abstract philosophy; when war came, he was faced by patriotism or consistency. He chose the former and a number of professors left the university. It was the first suppression of freedom of thought and action by Butler—and so far as I know the only one in his career.

Nicholas Murray Butler could have managed Columbia in his image, as it were. But he did not. He could have chosen men who reflected his views and his attitudes. But he chose the course of freedom. Often he was held accountable, by those who did not understand, for what appeared to be a confusion of ideas that came out of the schools in Morningside, but actually Butler, except in war, never interfered with his faculties. They pursued their searches in an atmosphere of freedom.

SQUEEZING DECLARER

SQUEEZING the declarer constitutes reversing the usual process. It happens very seldom, for a number of obvious reasons. First is the fact that the declarer is usually the fellow who can take enough tricks to put the pressure on his opponents and give them an impossible discarding problem. Second is the declarer's certainty about his own side's assets, as contrasted with the defenders' doubt about theirs. This last difficulty can be obviated by fine card readers in some situations, by figuring out what they can't see.

This deal is a good exemplification of the true statement that high contracts are not necessary to produce bridge dramas. Two of the nation's top, Leo Hazen and Morris Ellis of New York, both of whom have won the masters' individual championship, were in the North-South seats in a pair event. Deciding to play for penalties against the 1-No Trump in preference to bidding some more and seeking a mere part score, Mr. Ellis led his heart 3, the K being allowed to win. Mr. Hazen shot back the heart 5 to the Q, and the 8 was led to the A.

Now West took three more tricks, with the club J, diamond K and diamond A, then gave up the J to the diamond Q. Mr. Hazen, who had played the high 8 on the first club trick, won the club 6 lead, caused by that signal, with the A, and then laid down the last heart, the 10. That squeezed the daylight out of poor West, who had to forfeit a trick by his discard, no matter what he chose.

At this stage West held the spade K-10, diamond 10-4 and club K, the dummy having the spade J-9-8-6 and the club Q. Offhand he would appear to be bound to score one trick in spades, two in diamonds and one in clubs. But he had to pick a discard. North held the spade Q-7-5-4 at that stage and Mr. Hazen the spade A-3, heart 10 and club 10-3. A club discard by West would cause East then to be thrown in with the Q; his spade return would give South a spade and the setting club. A diamond toss would make him lose two spades after a diamond put him in. He picked the spade 10. The spade A then dropped his K and the Q of North then set it.

Secret Honeymoon

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

"We were married almost six weeks ago," said Bill shortly. "Secretly."

Mark stared at him again. "Secretly?" he repeated, as though quite sure that he was being ribbed. "Oh, come now, Kendall, no man could be fool enough for that. Any man lucky enough to marry Cathy wouldn't be able to keep from shouting the news to the house-tops."

He looked swiftly at Cathy, his brows drawn together in a puzzled, unhappy frown. "Is that on the level, Cathy? Are you married?" he demanded. "I—yes, Mark—oh, I'm terribly sorry I couldn't tell you before."

Mark asked very quietly, "And why couldn't you, Cathy?" Cathy looked at Bill's taut, white face and then away. "I'd promised Bill. We thought—" Her voice broke.

Mark turned sharply on Bill, his eyes blazing. "And who the heck are you that you had to marry a girl like Cathy secretly? Are you so darned important that your nuptials have to be arranged in secrecy? And how in thunder did you ever get a girl like Cathy to consent to such an arrangement?" he demanded.

"None of this is your concern." "Ah, but that's where you're mistaken, my fine fiddle," said Mark. "It's very much my concern. I happen to be in love with Cathy, and interested in her welfare—and I don't think a secret marriage is conducive to it, do you?"

"You may take it for granted that it seemed wise—" began Bill coldly.

"I'm taking nothing for granted in this most cockeyed of all cockeyed situations," said Mark impatiently. "Except that part about Cathy being so much in love with you that she lost her head and let you talk her into this—this darn fool arrangement."

"Mark—please! You don't understand," Cathy wailed. Mark turned to her and all the fury and the hostility vanished from his manner. His eyes were gentle—and a little sick.

"No, I don't understand, Darling," he said, and even Bill realized that the little endearment slipped out without his being aware of it. "But I want to understand, Cathy. I've got to understand. It's all so—so—well, tell me about it, Cathy."

"It's not your affair—" began Bill, blustering.

Mark's eyes slued around to him, but Mark did not turn his head.

"Well, maybe I intend to make it my affair," he said. "Cathy has no male relative to look out for her interests."

"She has a husband," said Bill. "And what a husband—a secret one!"

Bill moved toward him threateningly, and Cathy flung herself between the two men, a hand against the chest of each, saying sharply, "Bill, stop it! Mark, please listen—and try to understand."

"I'm trying like the devil, Darling," said Mark.

"Stop calling her Darling!" blazed Bill.

Mark grinned at him unpleasantly, and both were like growling dogs ready to leap at each other's throats the moment the leash was loosened.

"Will you behave—both of you!" said Cathy. Her voice trembled and tears threatened. "Bill and I are keeping our marriage a secret until—until we can persuade Bill's aunt that I can make Bill happy."

Mark's eyebrows went up. "Blazes! Bill's aunt got to do with it? You're twenty-one, aren't you?" he asked Bill.

Cathy's hand tightened on Bill's chest, pushing him back. "Bill's aunt controls the Kendall estate. It should be Bill's, but legally she can disinherit him, if he marries against her wishes."

Her voice died beneath the look of simple astonishment in Mark's eyes.

"And that's the reason for this secrecy?" he demanded incredulously.

Bill's face tightened. "I wouldn't expect a man who's always had a great deal of money to consider it very important," he said tightly.

"I'm glad you wouldn't—because I'll admit frankly that it seems to me very unimportant indeed, compared to having Cathy as one's wife," said Mark flatly.

"It happens that I love Cathy well enough to want to be able to take care of her decently."

Mark nodded. "Some fellows like to work to take care of their wives," he pointed out.

"Why, you—!" snarled Bill.

Cathy pushed him back, using both hands to do it, now that Mark seemed willing to stay put.

"Stop it, Bill. This is disgraceful," she said. "After all, Mark, this—this really doesn't concern you."

"That's where you're wrong, my pet," said Mark quickly. "It concerns me a heck of a lot, because I love you, too."

"Elaine said I'd find a situation like this," Bill told them.

Cathy looked at him swiftly, comprehension dawning in her eyes.

"Oh, I see—I might have known Elaine was back of this."

Bill nodded, unsmiling.

"Elaine thought it might be as well if we three had a little talk," he admitted.

"There was a taut silence. There was so much to be said that they were puzzled to find the way to begin. Mark turned and walked to the window, quite unconscious of the gingham apron still tied about his middle; and the situation was one that gave none of the three any inclination to see anything absurd in the apron or the man who wore it.

"You might have given a fellow a hint, Cathy," Mark flung over his shoulder.

"To—promised Bill—" Her voice stuck in her throat.

"And anyway, you've known all along that she was engaged to me," Bill pointed out unpleasantly.

"Engaged—sure. But not married," stated Mark. "And the fact that you and Cathy were engaged didn't seem to slow you up with the Elaine lady, so why should I give it any more importance than you did?"

"Cathy understood about Elaine."

"I don't think I did, Bill. I'm not quite sure I do now," Cathy cut in swiftly.

Bill looked at her, annoyed. "You knew Elaine and I were not in love with each other and that we were just stringing along together because of Aunt Edith."

Mark spoke with a restrained violence. "It seems to me, Kendall, that this Aunt Edith of yours is having a devil of a lot more to say about you and Cathy's lives than either of you, yourselves. After all, you're both full-grown, adult, supposedly able to manage your own lives—or at least your own marriage."

"I don't have to explain my motives or purposes to you."

"Nor to anybody else. They're all too plain even to an idiot," said Mark savagely. "You loved Cathy, but not enough to acknowledge her as your wife; you loved the thought of the Kendall money more than you loved Cathy."

"I think Cathy and I could work this out without your interference, Major—and I think we could both bear it if you took yourself off, don't you?" said Bill, his tone mild, but his jaw hard and his eyes blazing.

Mark snatched up his cap, became conscious of the apron, ripped it off and flung it violently from him.

"Now there, I think, you've got something," he said.

As he started toward the door, Cathy said swiftly, "Oh, Mark—I'm so terribly sorry."

"Skip it," said Mark roughly, and the door banged shut behind him.

Prevention of Tooth Decay

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

TO offset the discouraging fact that tooth decay is becoming more common, we have the fortunate one that dentistry today is more knowledgeable and skillful than ever before.

With the cooperation of the patient, the modern dentist can do much to keep the teeth in good condition. He can, for instance, detect decay when it is just beginning. At this stage he can save the tooth by removing the decayed area and filling the cavity. But all this is possible only when he is consulted early enough. That is why I stress the need of cooperation on the part of the patient. Only by going to the dentist for frequent check-ups can he make sure that decay will be discovered at the beginning.

Some people seem to have special susceptibility to tooth decay, while in others the teeth are more resistant. Just why this difference exists, it has not been definitely determined. It is thought that perhaps it is a matter of heredity or the type of diet which the mother uses during pregnancy.

More effort is constantly being put on preventive measures and some progress has been made. One method for frequent check-ups can be to put an element known as fluoride into the drinking water.

In twenty-six cities in the United States, experiments with fluorinated water are going on, and the results thus far seem to be promising. In fact, the results have been so good that many dentists have urged that all of the water in the United States be fluorinated. On the other hand, some time may yet be required to determine just what amount of fluoride is safe in drinking water.

Another method of employing fluorination is for the dentists to apply a solution of sodium fluoride directly to the teeth. This method has also been thoroughly tested and would seem to reduce decay about 40 per cent.

Other Methods

Other methods of using the fluoride, such as putting it into toothpaste or taking fluoride tablets, have not yet been tested enough to determine their value and dangers.

Still another method of preventing tooth decay, which has received some attention, is the application to the teeth of a solution of zinc chloride and potassium ferrocyanide. It is claimed that this treatment may be even better than the use of sodium fluoride. These substances, it is believed, may block up the little cracks in the teeth, thus keeping the germs from getting in and starting the decay process.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Richard Buckley

NEW YORK—Richard Buckley was in my office this morning, barking like a dog, reciting Shakespeare and singing extemporaneously about the Iron Curtain, and after I had ushered him out politely I couldn't help but reflect that Manhattan surely is the happy hunting ground of characters. Maurice Dreier, who awards butter knives to owners of restaurants whose steaks he likes; Ken McSarin, who eats 36 omelets at one sitting—you name it, we got it. I often wonder how Jim Moran, the California character who sold iceboxes to Eskimos and sat on an ostrich egg for several days, has resisted the siren song of New York. This is the place for Moran.

Today was my first encounter with Buckley, but I saw immediately that he belonged. He had on a purple shirt, a blue-and-yellow paisley bow tie, a fawn-colored velvet fedora and a thin gray mustache.

These riotous garments likely had come from the Clyde Shop, a Madison avenue establishment specializing in the emancipation of the American male from the conservative haberdashery chains that bind him, but as one gentleman to another I couldn't ask Buckley about his tailor. Viddy gauche, you know.

Buckley did, however, comment that he was not wearing his favorite quick change; that one included peach-colored beret, lavender bow tie on flaming red shirt, hunting jacket to match and riding crop. "I want," he added loftily, "to put a little color into the drab, mundane existence of the cave dwellers."

BUCKLEY IS, ROUGHLY, AN ACTOR. He appears wherever the dull green dollar bill draws him—night clubs, radio, recording studios and so on—but at the moment is devoting his time to classes in "rhythm thought."

He explained very carefully what rhythm thought is, bringing up dramatic reference to "the green edge of selfishness," but I guess I am just a poor slob because I had no idea what he was talking about. It really didn't matter. He just talked on and I listened and it was pleasant enough. I felt like the little barefoot farmer's daughter sitting spellbound while the traveling salesman spoke in three-syllable words.

Like John Carradine, Buckley devotes a great deal of his time to The Gesture. He can enter a telephone booth like Shakespeare answering the call for "Author, author!" He sits in a restaurant and tenderly asks a waitress, "Your Ladyship—would you be so kind as to get me a cup of coffee?"

When he is acting, Buckley will address a stagehand as "Sir" and tell him that "dash it all, you look like a million dollars."

"It pulls the hump right out of their backs," Richard says. "It's like lighting a lamp wherever you go." He has had seven wives, he says, and they all were wonderful. "I'd love to have gotten to know them better," he adds.

BARKING LIKE A DOG is one of his pet pastimes. He has a 165-pound harlequin Dane in California, but when he enters a restaurant here in New York it is just as if the missing monster is with him. He barks—loudly and commandingly. Then: "Get down, blast you! Down, I say! This is the last time I bring you anywhere." And so on.

Why does Mr. Buckley wallow around in whimsy then? "It's a big, bright light in people's stereotyped grind," he says. "They love to see the invisible dog—and the stiff-necked citizen will bring him imaginary bones."

Years ago, in Kansas City, Buckley was a master of ceremonies at a walkathon, but that career ended rather abruptly when, to lighten things up, he accepted his partner's dare and tossed two ripe eggs at the bald head of a spectator.

Chicago also has tender memories of our boy. He had a friend working in a mortuary, so one day they commandeered a coffin—"a beautiful, silk-lined job"—and an old highboy hearse. Buckley, dressed in tails, was loaded into the open casket and then, with style all the way along the Outer Drive to Chicago's South Side, where Buckley was appearing at a night club called the Suzy Q.

NEW MISSISSIPPI CANAL

SOON THE 1,100 mile waterway connecting Minneapolis-St. Paul with the Gulf of Mexico will be freed of navigation hazards. Under the Army engineers a giant canal is being constructed, its northern tip near St. Louis across the Mississippi River to Illinois. It is to extend eight miles south on a diagonal line to Granite City, Ill. The main lock is one of the largest locks in the world. It is 1,200 feet long which is 200 feet longer than the great locks of the Panama Canal. Its walls will reach to the height of a five-story building. The canal, which will be about four years in building, is necessary to avoid the seven-mile Chain of Rocks of the Mississippi in this area. Because of these obstructions tows must now be broken.

In the future the canal will permit quicker and cheaper shipment through from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, thus greatly enhancing the commercial and industrial growth of the vast Mississippi Valley. The cost is estimated at over 16 and a half million dollars with a broad new bridge, at another million and a half, planned to carry U. S. Route 66 over the canal.

The operation is gigantic, representing much expenditure of manpower and wealth. Few nations could undertake such a project of internal improvement at this time.

HOMES, NOT SHACKS!

ON THE outskirts of most metropolitan centers new homes are going up. Billboards proclaim them as "GI homes". They are small and priced a splinter under the $10,000 limit. A few years ago they would have been thought expensive at half the figure. In too many cases they are being built on a mass production scale in sickening uniformity. Row after row of them is mushrooming to completion. Each one, except for small details, is exactly like its neighbor. They are equidistant from the sidewalk and from each other. The effect is of an army cantonment with houses instead of barracks.

Mass production means economy, and the building trades have need for all savings possible. Yet surely such deadly monotony is not necessary. The American scene is being marred by it. The future of such dwellings in too many cases will be a tenement status. Constructed hastily, in many instances they will not stand up well. Lacking individuality, they will inspire little lasting affection.

America needs new houses, but they should be homes, not merely shacks.

People are beginning to ask where Joe Stalin keeps himself. Just give that man a little more invisible publicity, and he may develop into a solar myth.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Columbia university probably reached its apogee as an institution of learning during the years just before World War I. Nicholas Murray Butler, together with John Dewey, launched Teachers college, which is the most decisive factor in education in the United States. He lived long enough, 85 years, to be able to judge the consequences of the secularization of education and the emphasis of functional rather than humanistic training.

Nicholas Murray Butler was himself a curious combination of the scholar and practical man, more so perhaps than Eliot of Harvard or Hadley of Yale. He built an institution of learning that touched life at every point, that could have the best of Chinese and Indo-Iranian scholarship and also practical schools of journalism and dentistry. At about the time of World War I, Columbia housed a galaxy of learned men unequalled in America. Dewey in philosophy, Robinson in history, Beard in government, Thorndike in psychology, Seligman in economics, Shotwell, Hayes and Muzey in history, John Bassett Moore in international law, Hirth in Chinese, Jackson in Indo-Iranian languages, Pupin in physics, Boas in anthropology, and on and on.

It was a wonderful time to be at Columbia. There was enthusiasm for scholarship, close contact with brilliant men, sharp interchange of ideas. And the spirit of the place, taking its tone from Butler, was broadly liberal in the sense that the educated man meets life in all its characteristics, and forms his own conclusions as a personal choice.

World War I created a paradox. Nicholas Murray Butler had done more than any man in America to stir an interest in world peace. The Carnegie Foundation and Butler's own International Conciliation propagated for peace, for understanding and for world order. Butler had studied in Germany, had been honored by German universities. Many of the Columbia professors were opposed to the war; they could not hear the abuse on Germany that was characteristic of that war. They could not hate their colleagues who were of German origin.

Large numbers of students were inclined to oppose war. Columbia was the center of the Collegiate Anti-Militarism League which developed quite a following in American universities.

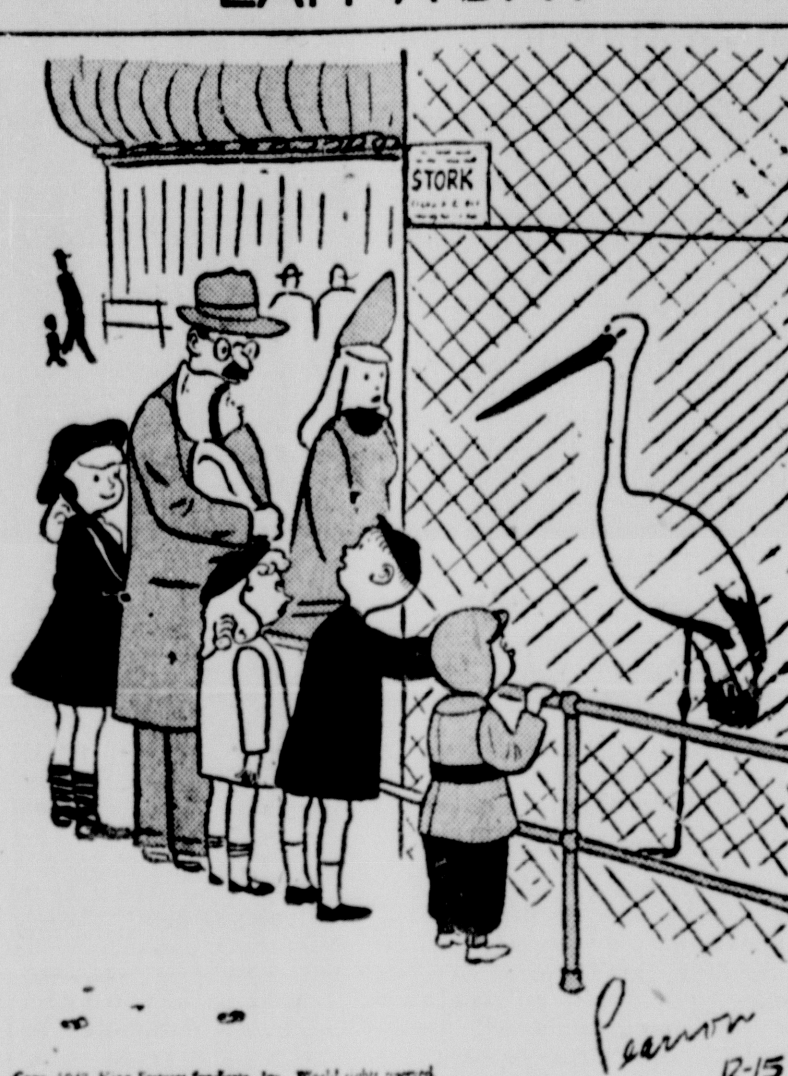

Butler's problem was no longer one in the realm of abstract philosophy; when war came, he was faced by patriotism or consistency. He chose the former and a number of professors left the university. It was the first suppression of freedom of thought and action by Butler—and so far as I know the only one in his career.

Nicholas Murray Butler could have managed Columbia in his image, as it were. But he did not. He could have chosen men who reflected his views and his attitudes. But he chose the course of freedom. Often he was held accountable, by those who did not understand, for what appeared to be a confusion of ideas that came out of the schools in Morningside, but actually Butler, except in war, never interfered with his faculties. They pursued their searches in an atmosphere of freedom.

SQUEEZING DECLARER

SQUEEZING the declarer constitutes reversing the usual process. It happens very seldom, for a number of obvious reasons. First is the fact that the declarer is usually the fellow who can take enough tricks to put the pressure on his opponents and give them an impossible discarding problem. Second is the declarer's certainty about his own side's assets, as contrasted with the defenders' doubt about theirs. This last difficulty can be obviated by fine card readers in some situations, by figuring out what they can't see.

This deal is a good exemplification of the true statement that high contracts are not necessary to produce bridge dramas. Two of the nation's tops, Leo Hazen and Morrie Ellis of New York, both of whom have won the masters' in individual championship, were in the North-South seats in a pair event. Deciding to play for penalties against the 1-No Trump in preference to bidding some more and seeking a mere part score, Mr. Ellis led his heart 3, the K being allowed to win. Mr. Hazen shot back the heart 5 to the Q, and the 8 was led to the A.

Now West took three more tricks with the club J, diamond K and diamond A, then gave up the J to the diamond Q. Mr. Hazen, who had played the high 8 on the first club trick, won the club 6 lead, caused by that signal, with the A and then laid down the last heart, the 10. That squeezed the daylight out of poor West, who had to forfeit a trick by his discard, no matter what he chose.

At this stage West held the spade K-10, diamond 10-4 and club K, the dummy having the spade J-9-8-6 and the club Q. Offhand he would appear to be bound to score one trick in spades, two in diamonds and one in clubs. But he had to pick a discard. North held the spade Q-7-5-4 at that stage and Mr. Hazen the spade A-3, heart 10 and club 10-3. A club discard by West would cause East then to be thrown in with the Q; his spade return would give South a spade and the setting club. A diamond toss would make him lose two spades after a diamond put him in. He picked the spade 10. The spade A then dropped his K and the Q of North then set it.

Secret Honeymoon

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE
"WE were married almost six weeks ago," said Bill shortly. "Secretly."

Mark stared at him again. "Secretly?" he repeated, as though quite sure that he was being ribbed. "Oh, come now, Kendall, no man could be fool enough for that. Any man lucky enough to marry Cathy wouldn't be able to keep from shouting the news to the house-tops."

He looked swiftly at Cathy, his brows drawn together in a puzzled, unhappy frown.

"Is that on the level, Cathy? Are you married?" he demanded.

"I—yes, Mark—oh, I'm terribly sorry I couldn't tell you before."

Mark asked very quietly, "And why couldn't you, Cathy?"

Cathy looked at Bill's taut, white face and then away.

"I'd promised Bill. We thought—" Her voice broke.

Mark turned sharply on Bill, his eyes blazing.

"And who the heck are you that you had to marry a girl like Cathy secretly? Are you so darned important that your nuptials have to be arranged in secrecy? And how in thunder did you ever get a girl like Cathy to consent to such an arrangement?" he demanded.

"None of this is your concern."

"Ah, but that's where you're mistaken, my fine liddle," said Mark. "It's very much my concern. I happen to be in love with Cathy, and interested in her welfare—and I don't think a secret marriage is conducive to it, do you?"

"You may take it for granted that it seemed wise—" began Bill coldly.

"I'm taking nothing for granted in this most cockeyed of all cockeyed situations," said Mark impatiently. "Except that part about Cathy being so much in love with you that she lost her head and let you talk her into this—this darn fool arrangement."

"Mark—please! You don't understand," Cathy wailed.

Mark turned to her and all the fury and the hostility vanished from his manner. His eyes were gentle—and a little sick.

"No, I don't understand, Darling," he said, and even Bill realized that the little endearment slipped out without his being aware of it. "But I want to understand, Cathy. I've got to understand. It's all so—so—well, tell me about it, Cathy."

"It's not your affair—" began Bill, blustering.

Mark's eyes alighted around to him, but Mark did not turn his head.

"Well, maybe I intend to make it my affair," he said. "Cathy has no male relative to look out for her interests."

"She has a husband," said Bill. "And what a husband—a secret one!"

Bill moved toward him threateningly, and Cathy flung herself between the two men, a hand against the chest of each, saying sharply, "Bill, stop it! Mark, please listen—and try to understand."

"I'm trying like the devil, Darling," said Mark.

"Stop calling her Darling!" blazed Bill.

Mark grinned at him unpleasantly, and both were like growling dogs ready to leap at each other's throats the moment the leash was loosened.

"Will you behave—both of you!" said Cathy. Her voice trembled and tears threatened. "Bill and I are keeping our marriage a secret until—until we can persuade Bill's aunt that I can make Bill happy."

Mark's eyebrows went up.

"And what in eternal pluperfect blazes has Bill's aunt got to do with it? You're twenty-one, aren't you?" he asked Bill.

Cathy's hand tightened on Bill's chest, pushing him back.

"Bill's aunt controls the Kendall estate," she explained rapidly. "Morally, it should be Bill's, but legally she can disinherit him, if he marries against her wishes."

Her voice died beneath the look of simple astonishment in Mark's eyes.

"And that's the reason for this secrecy?" he demanded incredulously.

Bill's face tightened.

"I wouldn't expect a man who's always had a great deal of money to consider it very important," he said tightly.

"I'm glad you wouldn't—because I'll admit frankly that it seems to me very unimportant indeed, compared to having Cathy as one's wife," said Mark flatly.

There was a taut silence. There was so much to be said that they were puzzled to find the way to begin. Mark turned and walked to the window, quite unconscious of the glint of light on the side of his head, and the situation was one that gave none of the three any inclination to see anything absurd in the apron or the man who wore it.

"You might have given a fellow a hint, Cathy," Mark flung over his shoulder.

"I'd—promised Bill—" Her voice stuck in her throat.

"And anyway, you've known all along that she was engaged to me," Bill pointed out unpleasantly.

"Engaged—sure. But not married," stated Mark. "And the fact that you and Cathy were engaged didn't seem to slow you up with the Elaine lady, so why should I give it any more importance than you did?"

"Cathy understood about Elaine."

"I don't think I did, Bill. I'm not quite sure I do now," Cathy cut in swiftly.

Bill looked at her, annoyed.

"You knew Elaine and I were not in love with each other and that we were just stringing along together because of Aunt Edith."

Mark spoke with a restrained violence.

"It seems to me, Kendall, that this Aunt Edith of yours is having a devil of a lot more to say about your and Cathy's lives than either of you, yourselves. After all, you're both full-grown, adult, supposedly able to manage your own lives—or at least your own marriage."

"I don't have to explain my motives or purposes to you."

"Nor to anybody else. They're all too plain even to an idiot," said Mark savagely. "You loved Cathy, but not enough to acknowledge her as your wife; you loved the thought of the Kendall money more than you loved Cathy."

"I think Cathy and I could work this out without your interference, Major—and I think we could both bear it if you took yourself off, don't you?" said Bill, his tone mild, but his jaw hard and his eyes blazing.

Mark snatched up his cap, became conscious of the apron, ripped it off and flung it violently from him.

"Now there, I think, you've got something," he said.

As he started toward the door, Cathy said swiftly, "Oh, Mark—I'm so terribly sorry."

"Skip it," said Mark roughly, and the door banged shut behind him.

Those whose birthday it is may look to a year of solid and enduring basis, born of a decided urge to industry, close application, and understanding of crystallized and static conditions. Prevention of Tooth Decay

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

TO offset the discouraging fact that tooth decay is becoming more common, we have the fortunate one that dentistry today is more knowledgeable and skillful than ever before.

With the cooperation of the patient, the modern dentist can do much to keep the teeth in good condition. He can, for instance, detect decay when it is just beginning. At this stage he can save the tooth by removing the decayed area and filling the cavity. But all this is possible only when he is consulted early enough. That is why I stress the need of cooperation on the part of the patient. Only by going to the dentist for frequent check-ups can he make sure that decay will be discovered at the beginning.

Some people seem to have special susceptibility to tooth decay, while in others the teeth are more resistant. Just why this difference exists, it has not been definitely determined. It is thought that perhaps it is a matter of heredity or the type of diet which the mother uses during pregnancy.

More effort is constantly being put on preventive measures and some progress has been made. One method which is being widely employed is to put an element known as fluorine into the drinking water.

In twenty-six cities in the United States, experiments with fluorinated water are going on, and the results thus far seem to be promising. In fact, the results have been so good that many dentists have urged that all of the water in the United States be fluorinated. On the other

Security Card Need Stressed

Part-Time Yule Clerks Reminded

Part-time as well as full-time salespeople, hired for the Christmas season in Circleville stores, must procure social security cards, it was stated Monday by C. C. Darby, manager of the Columbus district office of the Social Security Administration. The district embraces Circleville.

The Ohio State Employment Service office in Circleville said a number of extra salespeople have recently been hired by Circleville stores through the OSES and that each was instructed by the OSES to apply at the Circleville postoffice for a social security card. Some, however, already had a card.

It was explained that persons who make such application at the postoffice receive the card by mail from the social security office in Columbus.

The card is necessary in order that the wages paid can be reported properly by the employer.

ONCE a social security number is assigned, a person retains the same number throughout his or her life.

The number is the key to old age and survivor's insurance on which monthly benefits are based when the individual retires after attaining the age of 65, or becomes payable to the survivors in event of death before 65.

The noon dinner will be served in the Methodist Church by the Band Boosters Club.

Unabated violence in Palestine, which promises to mount in intensity when British troops are withdrawn, is directing fresh attention to the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, who has been ordained by his Moslem Kismet to play a major role in what may transpire.

The name of Haj Amin El Husseini is well-known. For in all his international escapades, the Mufti has not been averse to publicity.

A good deal of mystery nevertheless surrounds this almost legendary figure who has been labelled anti-British and pro-Nazi but who is looked upon by countless thousands as pro-Arab only.

Now 53 years of age, El Husseini has been a powerful figure in the Moslem world for at least three decades.

He was born in 1895, a member of one of Palestine's three great noble families known as "Effendis" who emigrated to the Holy Land from distant Yemen 400 years ago.

AT AN EARLY age, after his schooling in Cairo's EL-Azhar university, known as a center of Moslem fanaticism, Amin made his pilgrimage to Mecca.

This earned him the title of Haj, and with this rank he fought with the Turkish army in the early stages of World War I. When the immortal Lawrence of Arabia called the Moslems to arms under the equally legendary Lord Allenby, Haj Amin deserted the Turks and served with distinction in the British army, mainly in intelligence posts.

His banishment, long exile and spectacular return by way of King Farouk's royal palace in Cairo are more familiar aspects of his career.

Over the Arab's multitudes, Haj Amin exercises a sort of mesmerism that is an enormous factor in the developments of the present day.

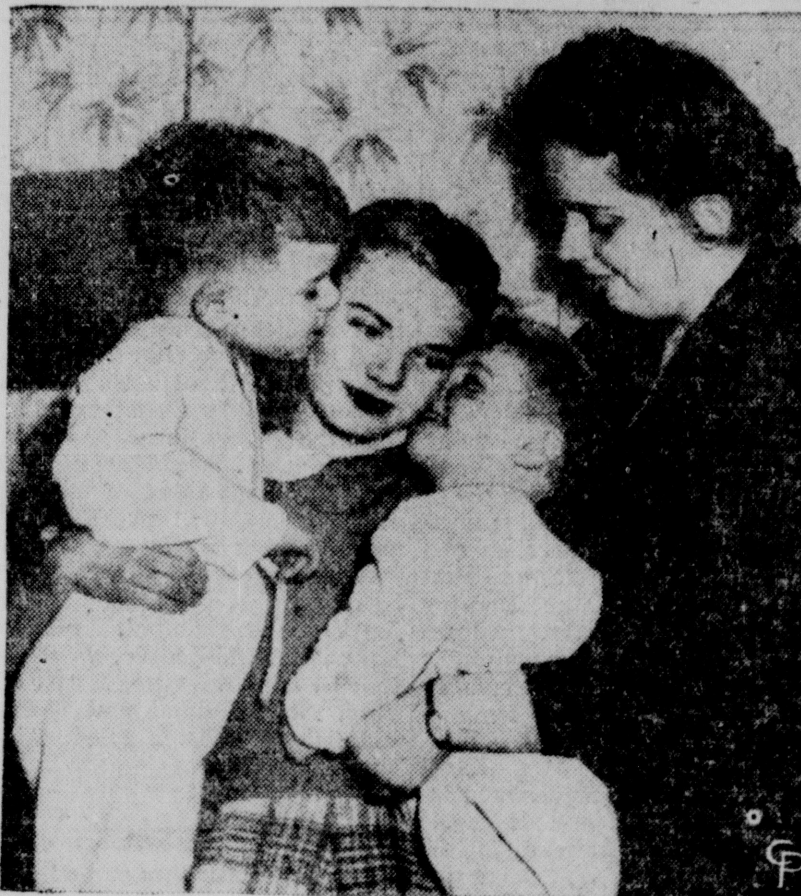

He is always dressed impeccably in a snow-white headress known as an Imami, and a flowing clerical robe of black.

His carefully-trimmed red beard is his trademark; his eyes are deep and lustrous and he accompanies his soft speech with mysterious movements of his hands that play upon Arab ecstasy down to violent anger.

Haj Amin el Husseini believes that the United Nations, by partitioning Palestine, has given the signal for a holy war that will achieve his lifelong aims—complete and unquestioned Arab domination of the entire Middle East.

Chart Shows Soil Needs Reinforcement

Manure is important in furnishing plant food to the soil, adding organic matter and rebuilding soil structure. But you cannot maintain your soil simply by feeding crops to live-stock and returning the manure to the land. The chart shows the losses that occur when 1,000 bushels of corn are fed to live-stock.

In making the feed into milk or beef, the animals use up 60 per cent of the original organic matter, 25 percent of the nitro-

With careful handling the manure (liquid and solid) will return to the soil a high percentage of the fertility originally contained in the feed. But under ordinary methods of handling, manure may lose as much as half its fertility and organic matter.

In order to maintain and improve the soil, manure should be reinforced by other good management practices. These should include lining, the growing of deep-rooted legumes in the rotation to open and ventilate the soil, and the application of commercial fertilizer as needed.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 15—Employees and customers of John W. "Jack" Singleton, Cleveland used-car dealer held in Cuyahoga County jail, were to testify today at a special grand jury session.

Theodore R. Spilka, attorney for Morris R. Blane, receiver in bankruptcy, said he would subpoena all customers who deposited cash on the Singleton lot in an effort to establish Walter A. Evans as Singleton's partner.

Three weeks of testimony in bankruptcy court has left unanswered the question of whether Singleton has any cash or other assets to pay off his debts, which approach $700,000.

Security Card Need Stressed

Part-Time Yule Clerks Reminded

Part-time as well as full-time salespeople, hired for the Christmas season in Circleville stores, must procure social security cards, it was stated Monday by C. C. Darby, manager of the Columbus district office of the Social Security Administration. The district embraces Circleville.

The Ohio State Employment Service office in Circleville said a number of extra salespeople have recently been hired by Circleville stores through the OSES and that each was instructed by the OSES to apply at the Circleville postoffice for a social security card. Some, however, already had a card.

It was explained that persons who make such application at the postoffice receive the card by mail from the social security office in Columbus.

The card is necessary in order that the wages paid can be reported properly by the employer.

ONCE a social security number is assigned, a person retains the same number throughout his or her life.

The number is the key to old age and survivor's insurance on which monthly benefits are based when the individual retires after attaining the age of 65, or becomes payable to the survivors in event of death before 65.

Unabated violence in Palestine, which promises to mount in intensity when British troops are withdrawn, is directing fresh attention to the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, who has been ordained by his Moslem Kismet to play a major role in what may transpire.

The name of Haj Amin El Husseini is well-known. For in all his international escapades, the Mufti has not been averse to publicity.

A good deal of mystery nevertheless surrounds this almost legendary figure who has been labelled anti-British and pro-Nazi but who is looked upon by countless thousands as pro-Arab only.

Now 53 years of age, El Husseini has been a powerful figure in the Moslem world for at least three decades. He was born in 1895, a member of one of Palestine's three great noble families known as "Effendis" who emigrated to the Holy Land from distant Yemen 400 years ago.

March of Dimes Campaign Set To Start January 15

Anti-Polio Goal Here Unfixed

Detailed Drive Is Planned

Annual March of Dimes campaign will be conducted throughout Pickaway county beginning Jan. 15 and ending Jan. 30.

In announcing the 1948 drive in the battle against infantile paralysis, Don D. Henkle, chairman of the Pickaway county unit of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said Monday that the goal for the coming campaign has not been fixed.

The 1947 campaign, waged last January, exceeded its goal of $5,000 by a small margin.

With a total of 17 reported polio cases in the city and county in 1947—the greatest number ever recorded in this county—hospitalization and medical treatment for the victims, mostly in Children's hospital at Columbus, exhausted the county unit's treasury.

Because of this, Henkle pointed out, it is probable that the 1948 campaign goal will be larger than the 1947 quota of $5,000.

HENKLE SAID he soon will name chairmen and sub-chairmen to direct the solicitations in Circleville and throughout the county. He said that every home and place of business will be solicited to make a cash contribution to the fund with which to battle the dread disease.

The 1948 drive promises to be the most energetic in the history of this community, Henkle asserted.

School children, teachers, theaters, and all fraternal and civic groups and farmers' organizations will be asked to cooperate.

It is planned, Henkle disclosed, to again place coin receptacles in all public places in the city and county for the collection of coins donated for the fight to halt the spread of polio.

Growers Warned To Watch Costs On Raising Pigs

COLUMBUS, Dec. 15—Ohio farmers were told by Professor Damon Catron, Iowa State college, that it now costs $77 to keep a sow while she is raising a litter and that 30 per cent of all pigs farrowed die before they are weaned.

The Iowan speaking at Ohio State university said few businesses can take a 30 percent loss at the start and end up with a profit.

He claimed, however, that farmers still can make a profit producing pork if they will prepare hog rations on a basis of feed value rather than kind of feeds. Pasture in Iowa trials has saved from 25 to 371 pounds of feed in producing 100 pounds of pork, depending upon age of the hogs and type of pasture.

Adding alfalfa meal to rations given brood sows during their gestation period increased the number saved, and the weights of the pigs at weaning time.

the vitamin B compound that the sows get from alfalfa meal. Dry lot rations for fattening hogs can be improved by adding fish products to a ration of corn, soybean oil meal, alfalfa meal, and minerals.

In Iowa trials, hogs made an average daily gain of 1.63 pounds in using 332 pounds of feed to make 100 pounds of pork when two percent of condensed fish solubles was added to the corn, soybean oil meal, and alfalfa meal.

Professor Catron said the critical periods in swine feeding are during gestation, especially in dry lots; nursing periods; and the time until pigs reach 75 pounds weight. Highly fortified supplements should be added to the grain ration during those periods.

In Iowa trials, hogs made an average daily gain of 1.63 pounds in using 332 pounds of feed to make 100 pounds of pork when two percent of condensed fish solubles was added to the corn, soybean oil meal, and alfalfa meal.

Professor Catron said the critical periods in swine feeding are during gestation, especially in dry lots; nursing periods; and the time until pigs reach 75 pounds weight. Highly fortified

Browns End All Arguments

Cleveland 11 Takes Crown

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—There shouldn't be any more arguments today about the Cleveland Browns' superiority over the New York Yankees.

The champions of the All-America Football conference proved conclusively yesterday at New York before 61,879 shivering fans that they are the better ball club.

The Browns won, 14-3, to retain their championship and bring Cleveland its third professional football winner in three straight years. The Cleveland Rams annexed the National Football League crown in 1945 before they moved their franchise to Los Angeles.

Yankee Coach Ray Flaherty's charges were hampered by a treacherous ice-flecked field but the slippery gridiron didn't stop Marion Motley, Browns' All-League fullback, from crushing the opposition.

BIG MARION reeled off 109 yards of the Clevelanders' total 172 gained by rushing. Fifty-one of these yards came when Motley took a Graham lateral in the first period and romped through the whole New York team before he was pulled down on the 13-yard line.

Otto Graham sneaked over from the one-yard stripe four plays later for the Browns' first tally. Lou Groza converted to make the score 7-0.

The Yankees took the kickoff and marched to the Browns' five-yard line but Urban Sanders and Buddy Young were held on three cracks at the line and Harvey Johnson came in to boot a 12-yard field goal.

Alert Tommy Colella made a beautiful shoe-string intercept of Sanders' pass in the third period and returned to the Yankees' 41 to inaugurate the Clevelanders' final touchdown drive.

Motley and Edgar "Special Delivery" Jones picked up yardage on running plays which carried the ball to the four-yard line from where Jones took a handoff from Graham and dashed over. Capt. Lou Saban kicked the extra point that ended the season scoring for the Browns.

The Yankee strategy of rushing Graham was only partially successful during the contest. Graham, former Northwestern ace, completed 14 of 21 aerials, most of them for short gains, but several came in the Clevelanders' two touchdown drives.

Sokolsky's These Days

It is unfortunate that Columbia university has become so big. That, of course, is the misfortune of every American institution of learning these days. They grow bigger but not better, for bigness often interferes with the capacity to inspire, to stir the imagination of youth, to quarrel over ideas, to fight it out, as we used to do, in classroom. Actually most schools have too many students.

Nicholas Murray Butler lived so long that he was a witness to the beginnings of higher education in America and also a witness to its great influence upon American life. He saw the shift from Latin and Greek to business administration and household arts. He also saw the changes implied in learning between the time when a university was headed by a man of profound scholarship and today when the administrator is moving in—the man who may not know the difference between epistemology and eschatology but who does know the cost of laying bricks and the proper method of wasing windows without wasting soap.

Butler was a scholar and Columbia stands a monument to his broad liberalism which gave America institutions of learning that could and did hold their own with the best in Europe.

Opinions expressed by the writer in the column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Cincinnati Herald.

Somebody Stole Bears' NFL Gridiron Toga

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—The story of Goldilocks and the eleven bears, a latter-day fairy tale for professional football fans, was ended today with a plaintive squeak from Papa Bear George Halas:

"Somebody stole my championship!"

The somebody, who looks no more like Goldilocks than papa bear does, was Jimmy Conzelmann, whose Chicago Cardinals won their first National League western division title yesterday by beating the Chicago Bears, 30 to 21.

The Cards scored from 80 yards out on the first play from scrimmage by using a play they had never used before, not even in practice, and they stayed ahead all the way mainly because the Bears were doing horrible things they'd never done before, not even in practice.

As a result, the Cards, who'd never finished higher than a tie for third since the NFL was split into east and western divisions in 1933, took their first sectional title. They'll face the winner of next Sunday's eastern division playoff between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia at Comiskey Park, Chicago, Dec. 28, for the league championship.

THAT FIRST Cardinal touchdown was an 80-yard pass play from Paul Christman to Right Halfback Babe Dimancheff, who was playing right half for the first time in his professional career.

Nine minutes after that, the Cards capitalized on an intercepted Sid Luckman pass to set up another score. Elmer Angsman plunged for the tally, as he did midway in the second quarter after pass interference by the Bears. Noah Mullins had put the ball on the Bear two.

Permanent Home For USTA Eyed

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—The question of a permanent location for the headquarters of the U. S. Trotting Association reportedly resolved itself today to a choice of Columbus or Indianapolis.

However, a spokesman for the association, which is holding its annual meeting in Chicago, said the decision on the site probably would be delayed until the organization's spring meeting in New York.

The USTA financial and rules committees in the first of their two-day sessions yesterday reached no conclusions in their meeting.

No drastic changes in the rules were expected, although it was reported that before the convention ended today legislation against "ringers" would be enacted.

Aussie Runner Eyed At Anita

ARCADIA, Cal., Dec. 15—Shannon, the Australian speedster, leads a 400-horse contingent today from Bay Meadows for the Dec. 27 opening of Santa Anita's eleventh winter season.

The star from down under, which recently figured in a pedigree dispute, got the jockey club's green light for racing in this country last week and is being trained for the Santa session by Willie Molter. Other mounts being shipped in by Molter are On Trust, Burning Dream, Precavator, Grandpere and Solidarity.

Kenyon OK'd

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—Officials of Kenyon college at Gambier, O., were notified today that the school had been accepted for membership in the U. S. Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association.

MINNESOTA CARRYING LOAD

Big 9 Cagers Step Up Schedule

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—Western conference basketball teams are stepping up their pre-league schedules this week with 15 contests against outside foes.

Five Big Nine clubs—Defending Champion Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Indiana and Michigan—are undefeated. Illinois and Iowa have scored the most impressive victories thus far. Each has three wins.

Carrying the heaviest schedule this week is Minnesota with three contests.

The Gophers, who earned a close 63-to-59 decision over Nebraska at Minneapolis Saturday, face home games tonight against De Paul and against the touring Washington Huskies Friday and Saturday.

Ohio State, loaded with sophomores, plays host at Columbus Saturday to Texas A. and M.

The Buckeyes stamped themselves as a definite threat in this year's conference race with a free-scoring 83-to-70 victory last Saturday over Marquette at Milwaukee. Neil Johnson and Dick Schnitter tallied 29 and 23 points, respectively, to lead the OSU five to its first victory in two starts.

MICHIGAN, which opened its season at Ann Arbor Saturday by defeating Western Michigan, 63 to 50, travels to Michigan State Thursday and to Marquette Saturday.

Wisconsin, with three triumphs, plays California on Friday and Saturday at Berkeley. The Badgers were not scheduled last Saturday night.

Illinois invades the east on Saturday with a single game against the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia. The Illini rolled from their upset win over Notre Dame to a convincing 70-to-33 victory over Pittsburgh Saturday night at Champaign.

Iowa travels to St. Louis to meet Washington university

Browns End All Arguments

Cleveland 11 Takes Crown

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—There shouldn't be any more arguments today about the Cleveland Browns' superiority over the New York Yankees.

The champions of the All-America Football conference proved conclusively yesterday at New York before 61,879 shivering fans that they are the better ball club.

The Browns won, 14-3, to retain their championship and bring Cleveland its third professional football winner in three straight years. The Cleveland Rams annexed the National Football League crown in 1945 before they moved their franchise to Los Angeles.

Yankee Coach Ray Flaherty's charges were hampered by a treacherous ice-flecked field but the slippery gridiron didn't stop Marion Motley, Browns' All-League fullback, from crushing the opposition.

BIG MARION reeled off 109 yards of the Clevelanders' total 172 gained by rushing. Fifty-one of these yards came when Motley took a Graham lateral in the first period and romped through the whole New York team before he was pulled down on the 13-yard line.

Otto Graham sneaked over from the one-yard stripe four plays later for the Browns' first tally. Lou Groza converted to make the score 7-0.

The Yankees took the kickoff and marched to the Browns' five-yard line but Orban Sanders and Buddy Young were held on three cracks at the line and Harvey Johnson came in to boot a 12-yard field goal.

Alert Tommy Colella made a beautiful shoe-string intercept of Sanders' pass in the third period and returned to the Yankees' 41 to inaugurate the Clevelanders' final touchdown drive.

Motley and Edgar "Special Delivery" Jones picked up yardage on running plays which carried the ball to the four-yard line from where Jones took a handoff from Graham and dashed over. Capt. Lou Saban kicked the extra point that ended the season scoring for the Browns.

The Yankee strategy of rushing Graham was only partially successful during the contest. Graham, former Northwestern ace, completed 14 of 21 aerials, most of them for short gains, but several came in the Clevelanders' two touchdown drives.

Somebody Stole Bears' NFL Gridiron Toga

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—The story of Goldilocks and the eleven bears, a latter-day fairy tale for professional football fans, was ended today with a plaintive squeak from Papa Bear George Halas:

"Somebody stole my championship!"

The somebody, who looks no more like Goldilocks than papa bear does, was Jimmy Conzelmann, whose Chicago Cardinals won their first National League western division title yesterday by beating the Chicago Bears, 30 to 21.

The Cards scored from 80 yards out on the first play from scrimmage by using a play they had never used before, not even in practice, and they stayed ahead all the way mainly because the Bears were doing horrible things they'd never done before, not even in practice.

As a result, the Cards, who'd never finished higher than a tie for third since the NFL was split into east and western divisions in 1933, took their first sectional title. They'll face the winner of next Sunday's eastern division playoff between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia at Comiskey Park, Chicago, Dec. 28, for the league championship.

THAT FIRST Cardinal touchdown was an 80-yard pass play from Paul Christman to Right Halfback Babe Dimancheff, who was playing right half for the first time in his professional career.

Nine minutes after that, the Cards capitalized on an intercepted Sid Luckman pass to set up, another score. Elmer Angsman plunged for the tally, as he did midway in the second quarter after pass interference by the Bears. Noah Mullins had put the ball on the Bear two.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—The question of a permanent location for the headquarters of the U. S. Trotting Association reportedly resolved itself today to a choice of Columbus or Indianapolis.

However, a spokesman for the association, which is holding its annual meeting in Chicago, said the decision on the site probably would be delayed until the organization's spring meeting in New York.

The USTA financial and rules committees in the first of their two-day sessions yesterday reached no conclusions in their meeting.

No drastic changes in the rules were expected, although it was reported that before the conclusion ended today legislation against "ringers" would be enacted.

SANTA BABE GETS SWEET REWARD

BASEBALL'S IMMORTAL Babe Ruth plays Santa Claus at Sister Kenny Christmas party in New York, and gets kiss from 3-year-old Jim McCall for his efforts. Buck Cagers Set To Meet Former OSU Star's '5'

COLUMBUS, Dec. 15—Ohio State basketball fans looked forward today to the return of an old favorite next weekend.

Marty Karow, Buck football captain in 1925, will invade the State Fairgrounds Coliseum Saturday in the role of coach of the Texas A and M basketball team.

The Bucks will be able to present a .500 record for the Aggie contest, thanks to an 83-to-70 victory over Marquette last Saturday.

Ohio's all-sophomore club won the free-scoring contest in the last half. The score was tied at 35-all at the intermission.

Center Neil Johnston and Forwards Dick Schnitker and Bob Donham all had large evenings for the Bucks. Johnston rang up 29 points for the offensive-minded Bucks, while Schnitker registered 23 and Donham 17.

End of the Fall quarter at Ohio State will bring Coach Tippy Dye the services of three additional men. Lettermen Ted Jacobs and Jim Wells will become eligible, along with Frank Hitt of last year's junior varsity.

Wilberforce '11' Nabs Bowl Tilt

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15—The record of Ohio teams in 1947 post-season "bowl" games remained perfect today.

Wilberforce State, winner of all but one regular season tilt, defeated Prairie View university of Texas, 26 to 6, yesterday at San Francisco in the All-Negro Fruit Bowl.

An estimated 9,000 fans saw a brilliant offensive exhibition by Wilberforce Halfbacks Walter Sellers and Carl Baylor. The latter scored three times, twice on passes and once on a seven-yard end run.

Previously, Toledo university inaugurated the bowl schedule with a 20-to-14 Glass Bowl victory over New Hampshire at Toledo.

One more Buckeye university, Miami, will appear in a post-season spectacle. The Redskins are booked for a New Year's Day appearance against Texas Tech in the Sun Bowl at El Paso.

Hoosier Wins

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Dec. 15—Anita Rump of Ft. Wayne, Ind., placed second in the singles with a 667 and fourth in the all-events with 1663 yesterday, accounting for two of the three changes on the boards of the women's central states bowling tournament.

Kenyon OKd

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—Officials of Kenyon college at Gambier, O., were notified today that the school had been accepted for membership in the U. S. Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association.

MINNESOTA CARRYING LOAD

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—Western conference basketball teams are stepping up their pre-league schedules this week with 15 contests against outside foes.

Five Big Nine clubs—Defending Champion Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Indiana and Michigan — are undefeated. Illinois and Iowa have scored the most impressive victories thus far. Each has three wins.

Carrying the heaviest schedule this week is Minnesota with three contests.

The Gophers, who earned a close 63-to-59 decision over Nebraska at Minneapolis Saturday, face home games tonight against De Paul and against the touring Washington Huskies Friday and Saturday.

Ohio State, loaded with sophomores, plays host at Columbus Saturday to Texas A and M.

The Buckeyes stamped themselves as a definite threat in this year's conference race with a free-scoring 83-to-70 victory last Saturday over Marquette at Milwaukee. Neil Johnston and Dick Schnitker tallied 29 and 23 points, respectively, to lead the OSU five to its first victory in two starts.

NICHIGAN, which opened its season at Ann Arbor Saturday by defeating Western Michigan, 63 to 50, travels to Michigan State Thursday and to Marquette Saturday.

Wisconsin, with three triumphs, plays California on Friday and Saturday at Berkeley. The Badgers were not scheduled last Saturday night.

Illinois invades the east on Saturday with a single game against the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia. The Illini rolled from their upset win over Notre Dame to a convincing 70-to-33 victory over Pittsburgh Saturday night at Champaign.

Iowa travels to St. Louis to meet Washington university

Walnut '5' Pacing Cage Loop

Pickaway, Ashville Also Undefeated

Walnut, Pickaway and Ashville still are the leaders in the Pickaway county Basketball league, each of them having been unbeaten so far in loop encounters.

Walnut forged into first place in the league with five victories Friday night since the former leader, Pickaway, played a non-league game. Both Walnut and Pickaway have scored 189 points against their league opposition.

Pickaway reigns in second place by virtue of the fact that it has scored 14 more points against their opposition than did the third-place Ashville crew.

The reserves of Walnut and Ashville hold the edge on the others again this week, having maintained their 1,000 percent standings after Friday night's tilts.

Games to be played this week are:

Pickaway at Hamilton township, Tuesday; Deercreek at Pickaway, Friday; Walnut at New Holland, Friday; Saltcreek at Scioto, Friday; Ashville at Darby, Friday; Good Hope at Perry, Friday; and Jackson at Monroe, Friday.

Robin Hoods Seeking Deer

PAINESVILLE, Dec. 15—Echoes of Sherwood forest resounded in eight Northern Ohio counties today as the first deer season in this area got underway for the "bow and arrow boys."

An estimated 100 archers were taking advantage of the opening two-day season, which has been reserved for the Robin Hoods. Nimrods who prefer guns will have to wait until the last three days.

Principal reason for the open season is that Northern Ohio deer have become a menace on the highway. Supervisor H. M. Cannell of District 3 said that "there have been more deer killed than rabbits."

"It already has got to the point where police chiefs are afraid to chase speeders because of the danger of running into deer. The deer also cost the farmer a good deal of money by gnawing at young trees and damaging corn and soybeans."

Demaret Banks Miami Money

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 15—Jimmy Demaret, flashily-dressed Ojai, Calif., pro, today banked the top purse in the $10,000 Miami Open golf tournament after firing a record-equaling 72-hole 267 to capture first place.

Demaret's victory sent his links earnings for the year to approximately $28,000.

The 267 posted by Demaret equaled the Miami Springs country club course record for the four rounds. It was 13 strokes better than par.

Demaret was two strokes in front of his nearest competitor, Freddie Haas, Jr., of New Orleans. Haas' 269 was two strokes in front of Ben Hogan, of Hershey, Pa., who finished third with a 271.

Sugar Fighting Weight Scales

DETROIT, Dec. 15—Ray (Sugar) Robinson, world's welterweight champion, faces a battle of the scales this week which may be as tough as his title defense in Detroit's Olympia Friday night.

Robinson will defend his crown against the challenge of Chuck Taylor, of Coalport, Pa., over the 15-round distance.

The champion has agreed to come in at the division limit of 147 pounds. However, after two strenuous workouts over the weekend, the best Robinson could do was "a heavy 154 pounds" according to his trainers.

Colonel Stoopnagle, the pixilated comic on Vaughn Monroe's Saturday night CBS stanza, can usually ad-lib his way out of any situation. There was one occasion, however, when he was completely stopped by an incident over which he now laughs heartily. It happened several years ago while the good colonel was touring the vaudeville circuit. He returned to his hotel from the theater one night to find that an admiring fan had sent a $1,500 pipe organ to his room. He was completely at a loss for a way to dispose of the instrument (which filled his room to such an extent he had little space in which to move around). He didn't know how to play a pipe organ, so naturally he had no use for it; and what's more, he knew of no friends or enemies, for that matter—on whom he might wish the odd present. Finally, in desperation, he gave it to the bellboy to take out of his room, and to this day "Stoop" doesn't know who sent it!

As a result, there's now a six-week waiting list to witness Groucho's broadcasts.

Proof that one of the best investments you can make is to write a successful song lies in one of the accomplishments of Maestro Peter Van Steeden. Peter, who directs the music on the Bob Hawk show over NBC Thursday nights, wrote "Home" back in 1931. Each year he's been getting royalty checks from the publisher and Dec. 1, 16 years after the song was written, he got a publisher's check for $68. 25 Ex-GIs Still Following On-Farm Training Course

17 Men Are Self-Proprietors

Shop Practices Are Stressed

Twenty-five of the 31 original Pickaway county ex-servicemen who started a course of on-the-farm training 16 months ago are still attending classes under the GI Bill of Rights, veteran training officials said Monday.

Hillis Hall, Circleville, who is instructor of veterans and a former high school vocational agriculture teacher, said the former GIs today are showing increasing interest in their studies and are destined to become outstanding farmers of the county.

He declared that of the 25 men still receiving the government-sponsored training, 17 are self-proprietors of farms—either renting acreage or in the process of buying farms.

Classrooms are in the Jackson township school where shop courses and lectures are heard. Among various projects completed by the student-veterans are four sets of wagon ladders, 12 chicken feeders, two eight-foot-hog feeders, plus various soldering and welding jobs.

SO FAR THIS year, five tractors owned by the men have been brought into the shop for repairs. Three are complete and ready to go with new rings, pistons and bearings. Five other tractors are scheduled to be brought into the shop.

The men are required to receive 200 hours of instruction per year. They are allowed to earn $200 a month including government subsistence. This latter item provides $90 for married men and $65 for single men. The course of study is now set up for three years, may be extended to four.

Fireman Injured In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Dec. 15—A fireman was injured and another overcome by smoke in battling a triple-alarm fire which caused an estimated $50,000 damage to a six-story brick building in Cleveland's flats area early today.

Arson squad members began an immediate investigation to determine the origin of the blaze.

Fire Chief James E. Granger said the fire apparently started in the Republic Plating Company on the fourth floor of the building shortly before midnight.

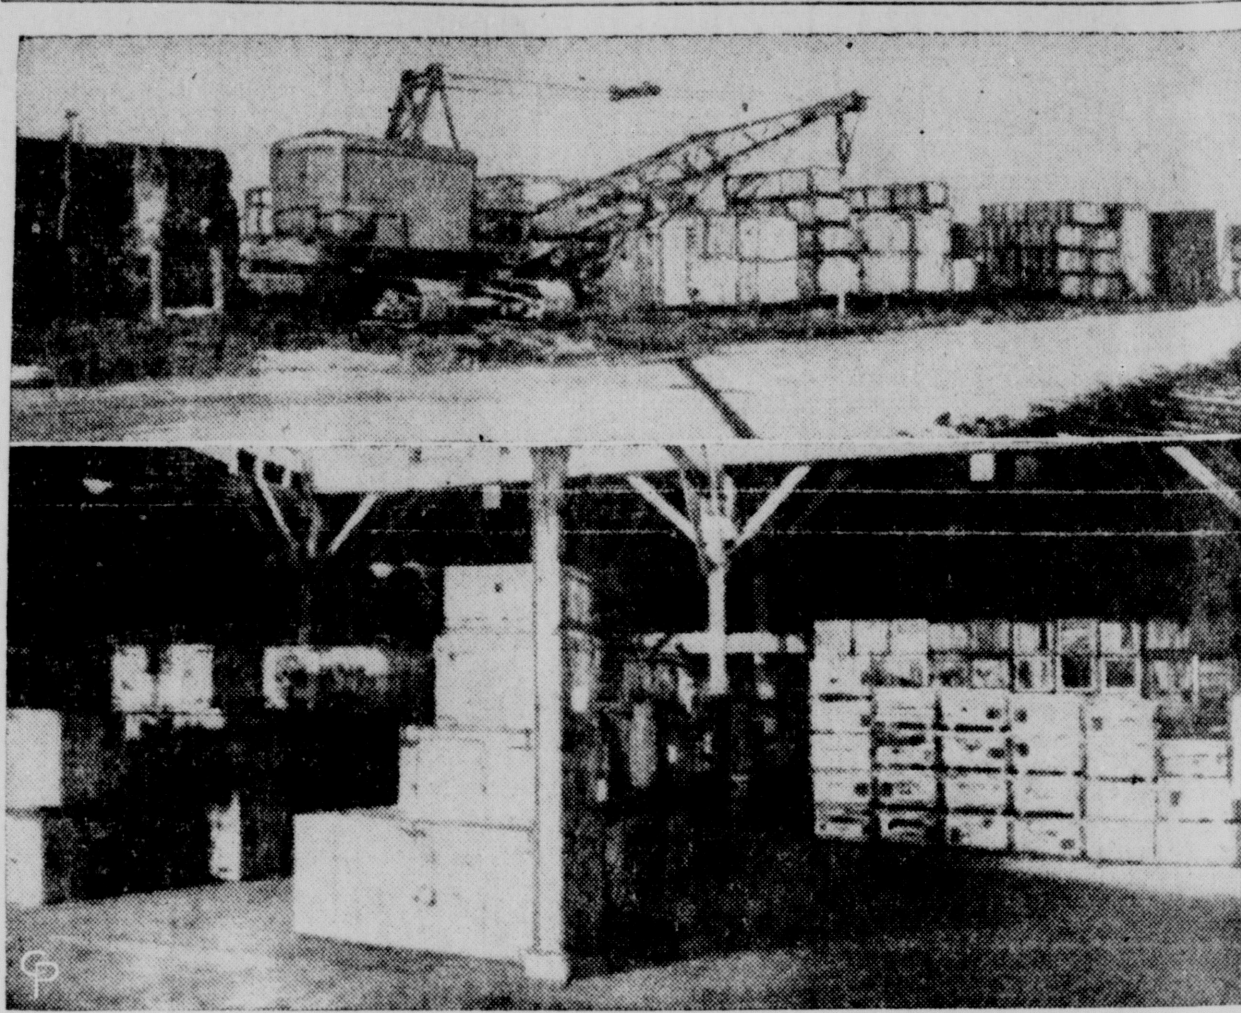

Columbus Solon Dies In Florida

COLUMBUS, Dec. 15—Members of the state legislature today mourned the death of Rep. Henry H. Metcalf of Columbus, who died yesterday in a West Palm Beach, Fla., hospital.

Metcalf was the leader of the Franklin County delegation and in his eighth term as a member of the Ohio general assembly. He had a heart ailment for several years and had two preliminary attacks Nov. 21 and Dec. 9 after going to Florida in October.

INVESTIGATORS for the house war investigating committee have found more than $17,000,000 in machinery manufactured for Russia stored in War Assets Administration warehouses in the east and midwest, according to Rep. Ross Rizley (R.) of Oklahoma. A WAA official said that the material has been declared surplus and processed for sale in the usual manner. Thirty-five carloads of electric equipment are seen in a warehouse at Marion, O., (top) and electrical mine hoist equipment at Warren, O., (below).

Bronx Cheer Vaults Spike Jones Into National Fame, Fortune

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—Lindsey Armstrong Jones back in 1942 made capital of a Bronx cheer and a certain unsavory character. It was the proverbial mousetrap that brought the world patter to his doorstep.

The world, which clopped up to his shanty door with pockets full of money, included radio, but at that it took radio five years to decide the Spike Jones' mousetrap was a good working model.

This Fall Spike Jones and his City Slickers, specialists of the washboard-cowbell type of musical Americana, along with Dorothy Shay, the Park Avenue hillbilly, were given star billing on a CBS show.

The Slickers are the fellows who make mince meat of popular and classical tunes with an assortment of hardware, screams, bracks and undignified catcalls. The sum total of this has produced such Jones' classics as "Cocktails for Two," "Chloe" and "Holiday for Strings."

YOUNG JONES forever abandoned the genteel sounding name of Lindsey Armstrong at the age of 11 when his mother presented him with a set of drums for Christmas.

There commenced a noisy career that graduated from the high school band to professional dance orchestras.

In 1942, Spike organized the Slickers, a group of musicians with a peculiar talent for making melodic mayhem. Mostly, he says, it was for fun.

One of the numbers they brewed was a novelty called "Der Fuehrer's Face," which consisted primarily of a juicy Bronx cheer aimed at Hitler. That's what did it.

Quills from goose feathers were most generally used for quill pens, but swan and turkey quills were not uncommon; and for very fine writing and for pen-and-ink drawing, crow quills were preferred to all others.

Police Stumped By Rice Case

COLUMBUS, Dec. 15 — Police reported no progress today after questioning two additional suspects in Wednesday's killing of a Columbus real estate dealer, Elmo C. Rice.

Homicide squad detectives said they picked up an intoxicated man in a downtown bar after he bragged:

"I haven't had so much fun since I shot that guy on the bridge the other night."

A representative of Alcoholics Anonymous tried Sunday to secure the release of a Monroe, Ind., man arrested after police heard that a man answering the slayer's description was staying at a local hotel.

Gulf Hiking Motor Oil Price

TOLEDO, Dec. 15—The Gulf Refining Company announced today a price increase of five cents per quart on Gulfube and Gulfpride motor oil in the Toledo area.

Richard R. Johnston, divisional manager at Toledo, said the boost was necessary to meet the advancement during the last three years of production costs and materials, and to defray increased expenses in operating retail outlets.

Officials in other companies in the Toledo area said they anticipated no immediate increases.

'Divine Order' Said Big Need

CLEVELAND, Dec. 15—Nicholas Kovalak, representative of the Watchtower Society, New York, believes that "a divine order of spirit creatures, not a man-made government" is the answer to world peace.

Kovalak, principal speaker at the final assembly of the three-day midyear convention of Northern Ohio Jehovah's Witnesses in Cleveland yesterday, declared:

"Physical facts show that the kingdom or government of God is the only hope for this world." Some 2,000 witnesses attended the meeting.

Explosive Idea

WIDESPREAD discussion has followed the suggestion of Dr. Leo Szilard, A-bomb pioneer, that an exchange of Russian and American opinions be broadcast by Premier Josef Stalin and President Truman. Dr. Szilard, biophysics professor at the University of Chicago, provided the nuclear information which led to the making of atomic bombs. When U. S. sources refused to let him send his radio-talk idea to Stalin, Szilard printed it as an "open letter" in the monthly "Bulletin of Atomic Scientists." (International)
